Car Carnage To Take 600 By New Year

By TED PULFORD

British Columbia motorists are killing one another — and themselves — at a rate unprecedented in the history of the province. And, if the trend continues, 600 persons will die before the end of the year.

Quake Next?

MANILA (UPI) — The Taal volcano spewed showers of ash and shook with intermittent tremors Tuesday, increasing fourth of a general earthquake that could strike Manila 40 miles to the north.

Refinery Boost For U.K.

LONDON (CP) — Britain's ailing economy got another big boost Tuesday with the announcement by a leading United States corporation that it will proceed immediately with construction of a $90,000,000 oil refinery in England.

This decision by Continental Oil Co. — described by a major British industrialist as one of "immense courage" — came a day after Canada's Home Oil Co. confirmed discovery of a huge natural gas deposit on the Yorkshire Moors. This could lead to a Canadian investment of up to $200,000,000.

BY TANKERS

Continental's oil refinery, to be completed by late 1968 on the lower banks of the Humber at Immingham, just across the river from Hull on Britain's east coast, will refine about 4,500,000 tons of oil a year. It will use some Middle East crude but mostly oil brought by company tankers from huge reserves in Libya.

Refined products will be fed into Britain and also exported to the Continent, helping to strengthen Britain's international payments, Brown told a press conference.

COKE SUPPLY

This new plant, to be built by British Engineers, will provide Britain with its first domestic production of electrode-grade petroleum coke, used in producing aluminum and electric hearth steel.

Along with other products, the new plant will produce benzene.

'We're More Popular'

Sacrilege by Lennon Brings Beatle Ban

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A magazine article quoting John Lennon of the Beatles as saying his group is more popular than Jesus has ignited a "ban the Beatles" campaign by Birmingham radio station WAQY.

Station Manager Tommy Charles said Tuesday the Beatles were his No. 1 attraction before he read the article in Datebook.

The article quotes Maureen Cleave of the London Evening Standard as quoting Lennon as saying:

"Christianity will go. It will vanish and shrink. I needn't argue about that; I'm right and I will be proved right.

We're (the Beatles) more popular than Jesus now; I don't know which will go first — rock 'n' roll or Christianity. Jesus was all right, but his disciples were thick and ordinary. It's them twisting it that ruins it for me."

Commenting on Lennon's statement, Charles said: "We just felt it was so absurd and sacrilegious that something ought to be done to show them they cannot get away with this sort of thing."

The Birmingham disc jockey said more than 90 per cent of the calls regarding this campaign support it.

"Almost unbelievably the teen-agers, almost as soon as they were sure it was true (the quotes), became really angry, some to the point of tears," Charles said. "All sorts of record and book stores have called saying they are taking their Beatle records and books off the market."

WAQY is broadcasting spot announcements every hour telling the audience to turn in their Beatle records, pictures, magazines and souvenirs to designated pickup spots.

"We'll have a giant Beatle bonfire the night they are closest to Birmingham on their next American tour, probably when they are in Memphis later this month," Charles said.

Tea Tieup In Order

LONDON (AP) — A British railway signalman who brought the service to a standstill by walking off the job for a tea break was perfectly within his rights, a rail official said Tuesday. (See Page 8.)

Said a spokesman for the state-owned rail system: "There is no question of any action against him."

War Crimes Judges Named by Russell

NEW YORK (AP) — The names of 10 people who will serve on Lord Bertrand Russell's "war crimes tribunal" to try President Johnson and other American leaders for their Vietnam policies were announced Tuesday at a news conference.

They include French writers Jean Paul Sartre and Simone de Beauvoir, and Peter Weiss, the German exile who wrote the play Marat-Sade.

Lord Russell, 84, announced last June he would set up the tribunal this November in Paris, because France presents fewer visa problems for Vietnamese witnesses.

The panel will include Lazaro Cardenas, former president of Mexico; Danilo Dolci, Italian author; Lelio Basso, Italian socialist; Josue de Castro, Brazilian scientist and chairman of the United Nations Council of Food and Agriculture; Vladimir Dedijer, Yugoslavian political scientist who has taught at Harvard; Isaac Deutscher, Polish exile in London who has written biographies of Stalin and Trotsky; and Lord Russell.

First Visit to Command Since Landymore Dust-up

Allard Will Sample Halifax Before Hellyer

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Gen. Jean V. Allard, new chief of the defence staff, will pay his first visit to Maritime Command later this week, it was learned Tuesday.

He was invited to visit the command in mid-July after the firing of Rear-Admiral William Landymore by Defence Minister Hellyer in a dispute over the minister's plans to go ahead with unification of the armed forces.

Gen. Allard is expected to leave here today by plane, returning Friday.

His visit is regarded as preparation for the planned tour of Maritime Command by Mr. Hellyer later this month.

One possible reason for Gen. Allard's visit may be to discuss unification plans with Rear-Admiral J. C. O'Brien, who succeeded Rear-Admiral Landymore as commander of Maritime Command and of the Atlantic fleet.

The plans have been discussed during the last two weeks by the defence council, top policy advisory body at Canadian Forces Headquarters.

He has said unification would mean no greater economy or efficiency than having three services.

Informants said Mr. Hellyer will place a detailed unification plan before Parliament with the unification legislation, and recommend study by the Commons defence committee.

Railway Express Paralyzed In Wildcat Strike

Tea Tieup In Order

LONDON (AP) — A British railway signalman who brought the service to a standstill by walking off the job for a tea break was perfectly within his rights, a rail official said Tuesday. (See Page 8.)

Said a spokesman for the state-owned rail system: "There is no question of any action against him."

MONTREAL (CP) — Some 2,000 express employees at the CNR and CPR in Montreal remained on strike Tuesday night and railway spokesmen said express shipments in and out of the city were wholly or partially stopped.

A spokesman for the CNR, where 1,500 of the men are involved in the wildcat strike, said: "We cannot handle express in or out of Montreal."

At the CPR, an express spokesman said there was an embargo on shipment of perishable goods in and out, and that "ordinary merchandise is being taken but subject to delay."

The strikes began at the CNR Monday and at the CPR Tuesday.

MARCHED

The men were apparently dissatisfied with the pace at which negotiations are proceeding toward agreement on a new work contract.

The men at the CNR belong to the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CBRTGW). They staged a march Tuesday to the railway's Central Station.

That union, which did not support the strike, issued a statement Tuesday night saying its leaders planned to "advise their members to discontinue a work stoppage and return to work" today.

NO WORD

Emery Leblanc, manager of the CNR's St. Lawrence region, said the men who began the strike at the CNR did not resume work when their shift began Tuesday.

"We haven't heard anything about when they intend to return to work," said Mr. Leblanc in an interview.

The men at the CPR are members of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees (CLC).

A conciliation board was set up nine months ago to study the union's demands for an increase of 97 cents in the men's hourly wage rate.

Shot from Hilltop Kills Playing Child

HOQUIAM, Wash. (AP) — Kelley Campbell, 4, shot mysteriously as she played near her home here Monday, died Tuesday as a result of the wound.

The little girl was shot in the back of the head with a .22-calibre bullet. She never regained consciousness.

"We don't have anything definite yet," said Sgt. Edward Herman. Officers believe the shot was fired from a spot on a hill about 200 feet from where the youngster was playing.

Shoals Ahead For Medicare

TORONTO (CP) — Federal proposals for subsidizing medical care insurance schemes operated by the provinces seem headed for rocky shoals. Several provincial premiers said Tuesday they aren't happy with terms laid down by Ottawa for participation.

Sniper Warned Slaughter Coming

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A University of Texas psychiatrist who examined a slain sniper Charles J. Whitman said Tuesday Whitman told him March 29 he was "thinking about going up on the tower with a deer rifle and shooting people."

Dr. Maurice Dean Healy, who said he examined Whitman March 29, made the disclosure at a campus press conference. The disclosure came shortly after an autopsy report revealed Whitman had a brain tumor, which officials said might have indirectly contributed to his murder rampage that left 16 dead, including himself. Another 34 were wounded.

Healy, on the staff of the university health centre, said

Whitman recognized or felt "he was not achieving in his school work, and this was disconcerting to him."

The stocky, bespectacled psychiatrist said Whitman readily admitted to hostility with a minimum of provocation.

Healy, who said Whitman had been referred to him by a general practitioner, said earlier Whitman had described his father as being "cruel, domineering and extremely demanding." He quoted Whitman as saying he was "very fond of his wife."

Whitman admitted having assaulted or struck his wife on two occasions, Healy said. However, he continued, Whit-

Figures Say No

Are Grits Cooling Boom?

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Trade Minister Robert Winters Tuesday painted the picture of a boom that is galloping faster than the government's attempts to control it.

In his mid-year review of private and public investment, Mr. Winters said the estimate this year is $15,024,000,000.

This would be 17 per cent higher than the $12,798,000,000 spent on capital purposes last year.

ESTIMATES RISE

The government, since its new year predictions, has had to revise its estimates upwards.

The new figures suggest that the government, with special tax measures introduced by Finance Minister Sharp this year, may be failing to cool off the boom.

These measures included an appeal to business to delay projects to ease the load on the construction industry, and extension of the construction "freeze" on some government projects; and a five per cent refundable tax on cash profits.

MORE PROBLEMS

In his review, Mr. Winters said the realization of the investment program would add to the demands placed upon the construction, materials and equipment-producing industries.

These industries are already operating at close to capacity limits, and it seems unlikely that all programs now planned for 1966 will be completed this year.

RESTRAINT NEEDED

The new figures, Mr. Winters said, underlined the need for restraints in capital projects.

The revised investment plans involve capital outlays for machinery of $5,629,000,000 and construction of $9,395,000,000.

These figures were 22 per cent and 15 per cent over last year.

The increase has occurred almost entirely in the business sector of the economy, up 23 per cent over last year and six per cent over the estimate made early this year.

Most of it is in manufacturing, mining, electric power, telecommunications and transportation facilities.

UN Voting Today On Clashes

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council ended Tuesday an eight-day debate on Syria and Israeli complaints of border incidents. It scheduled a vote today on a resolution to condemn Israel's July 14 air attack on a Syrian river development project.

Diplomats predicted the resolution, sponsored by Jordan and Mali, would fail three votes short of the nine-vote majority necessary for adoption.

Hospital Tieup Ending

MONTREAL (CP) — Indications were Tuesday that the end of Quebec's 15-day strike of 52,500 non-medical hospital workers in 119 hospitals could come about quickly.

Yves Pratte, given authority to sign a contract settlement with the workers under an order placing 128 hospitals under government trusteeship and naming him as administrator, held day-long talks with the workers' representatives.

The workers' representatives agreed during the weekend to a government wage proposal offering $10-a-week increases on the workers' average weekly wage of $69 on condition the hospitals, represented by the Quebec Hospital Association, agreed to incorporate clauses dealing with promotion and union rights in a contract.

The hospital association refused to agree to this and as a result the government Monday placed the hospitals under government trusteeship.

Carnage Climbing

indicating that our highway accidents are becoming progressively more severe.

This indication is confirmed, Mr. Hadfield said, by the rising property damage figures. The number of accidents has risen by 7 per cent while the toll of property wrecked is up 18 per cent.

ONLY PROPERTY

He went on to say that the property damage figures covered only the cost of repairing or replacing the vehicles involved and property actually smashed in the accident.

"No provision is made in these figures for medical costs, time lost from work and so on," Mr. Hadfield said. "If these were taken into account, I suspect the damage figure would be three or four times higher than it presently is."

SHOCKING PICTURE

Comparative monthly figures show an even more shocking picture of increasing mayhem on the highways. For June of 1966, a total of 36 fatalities was recorded. This is a 16 per cent increase over the 31 deaths of June, 1965.

For June of 1966, property damage is up by a staggering 32 per cent, the number of property-damage accidents is up 21 per cent, injury accidents rose 15 per cent and the 1,595 injuries recorded for the month represents an increase of 14 per cent over a year ago.

What is the cause of this bloody trend, and what is being done to curb it?

In the first place, Mr. Hadfield pointed out, people are taking to the roads as never before in the province's history. Highway travel is up by at least 9 per cent.

"Moreover, vehicles are more expensive, they travel faster, repairs are costlier. All of these things are involved but one must still harp back to the same old basic problem: The lack of responsibility of the individual driver."

ONLY ONE

"No matter what we do, we will not succeed so long as the individual motorist behaves as though he's the only human being on the road."

The problem is being attacked from many directions, Mr. Hadfield said, but no one approach provides the complete answer. "Safety devices in cars are fine," for example, "but what good is a seat belt if the motorist drives around sitting on it?"

Law enforcement and licence-restriction procedures are being pressed to the absolute limit of the men and equipment available.

For the seven-month period ending July 31, Mr. Hadfield's branch has issued 5,308 warning letters to erring drivers, 900 hearings and interviews have been conducted, 729 drivers have been placed on probation for varying periods of time and a mountain of $600 driving records has been investigated following accidents or court convictions.

The motor vehicle branch's driver improvement program has resulted in 1,723 suspensions so far this year and a further 8,500 have been ruled off the road for failing to demonstrate financial responsibility after becoming involved in an accident.

BIG INCREASE

Magistrates throughout the province have suspended 3,000 drivers licences since the first of the year — an increase of more than 35 per cent over last year's figure.

Mr. Hadfield has urged parents to introduce highway safety attitudes to their children. "Letting a child stand on the seat of a car can be terribly dangerous," he said. "If there's an accident, the youngster hasn't got a chance."

He urged, too, that motorists pay greater attention to the limitations of their vehicles. "We are a mobile people," he said. "We head out on the highways towing boats, trailers, campers and collapsible tents."

Justice of the Peace Jerry Dellana said Dr. C. DeChenar man indicated that his wife at the time of this examination had more confidence in him. "less fear of him."

Heavily cited what he described as "intense efforts" by Whitman to keep from losing his temper with her.

The psychiatrist, who said he treated Whitman at the health centre, asserted that the young ex-marine apparently was disturbed with the marital disharmony between his parents, and "retained hostility toward his father."

In his opening remarks, Heavily described Whitman as a "large-statured, muscular youth who looked like a professional football player" and said his features suggested the all-American boy.

Dr. Charles LeMaitre, university vice-chancellor for health affairs, said at the beginning of a press conference the March 29 appearance was Whitman's only psychiatric appointment at the university.

AT ANY TIME

"Mr. Whitman was told to make an appointment for the same day the next week, and was informed that if he felt he needed to talk to the therapist, he could call on him at any time in the interval," LeMaitre said.

"However, he never returned and was not seen by this therapist (Heavily) or by any other University physician after March 29, 1966."

LeMaitre said: Dr. Heavily's conclusion on March 29, 1966, that there was no indication at that time that Whitman was a danger to either himself or the community was consistent with the impressions of his teachers, his employer and his associates, none of whom observed anything during the intervening four months which reflected unusual behavior.

EX-ALTAR BOY

Whitman, 25, known as a good guy, former altar boy and one-time boy scoutmaster, killed his wife and mother in their apartments before dawn Monday, then slew 13 more persons in an hour and a half of terror as he fired from the underground, Austin's tallest building.

Two officers and a civilian volunteer finally made their way up the tower and killed the ex-marine.

The FBI said it may have been the greatest mass slaughter in U.S. history.

SIZE OF PECAN

Justice of the Peace Jerry Dellana said Dr. C. DeChenar found a small brain tumor close to the brain stem, about the size of a pecan—this is the term he gave me.

Dellana said the tumor affected "the sensory passages that you feel pain with. There are pressure points that could have caused intense pain—headaches—that could have indirectly caused or contributed to his actions."

Dellana said DeChenar stressed that the tumor "did not have anything to do with the part of the brain that affected logical thinking."

NOTES LEFT

Police Chief Robert A. Miles said notes Whitman left beside the bodies of his wife and mother requested an autopsy to try to determine what caused the pressures that drove him to kill.

Miles said that on advice of lawyers Whitman's notes will not be made public and "may never be released."

Miles said information about the case probably will be presented to the grand jury "but I don't know if there is anything for the grand jury to act on."

Officers disclosed Monday night that in notes left beside the bodies of his mother and his wife, the sniper wrote that he wanted to spare them the embarrassment of what he was about to do.

POLICE HELPLESS

Armed with rifles, pistols and a shotgun he held officers helpless until an off-duty policeman, another officer and a civilian who borrowed a rifle from them reached the observation deck.

The two officers killed him with pistol and shotgun fire. A buckshot pellet struck Whitman between the eyes and penetrated his brain.

Whitman, blonde, with a crew cut, received a court-martial sentence of 30 days for violating orders while in the marines. Police could find no criminal record against him.

MENTALLY DISTURBED

Officers said the notes he left with the bodies of his wife and mother disclosed Whitman was definitely mentally disturbed.

Friends and neighbors considered him "just as normal as anybody I ever knew. . . . That was the pronouncement of his father-in-law, Raymond W. Leisner, a rice farmer and real estate agent of Needville, Tex.

President Johnson, deploring what he called "the shocking tragedy," said "We must press urgently" for a federal gun-control law.

Officer Ramon Martinez, 29, relaxing on his day off, sped to the scene. Crawling and running, he reached the main entrance of the tower, followed by officer George McCoy, 26. They gave a rifle to Allen Crum, a university employee.

The three reached the observation tower and separated.

Martinez saw Whitman first, and they fired at each other. Whitman got off one shot while Martinez' bullet struck Whitman's neck. McCoy fired his shotgun, one pellet hitting Whitman between the eyes.

The battle of an hour and a half was over.

The count of dead mounted during the day as Whitman picked off officers, students, visitors and a reporter.

Spectators and police sought to reach the wounded and the dead, but Whitman's accuracy was so deadly that finally armored trucks were called to pick up the victims.

Not until the fight ended did officers find the body of his mother and wife in separate apartments.

Whitman hauled a footlocker filled with weapons, ammunition, food and water by elevator and steps to the observation deck of the tower. There he killed the woman custodian of the tower and a woman and her two children who were sightseeing.

EXPERT SHOT

Whitman's rifle record in the marines was sharpshooter, in a grading of expert, sharpshooter and marksmanship.

University Chancellor Harry Ransom said Whitman's academic record was above average. He was an architectural engineering major.

One of the persons killed was an unborn infant whose mother was wounded.

The agony of those wounded was great in the 36-degree heat. Norma Burger, working at a library window in the tower, at one point saw six persons lying on the concrete near the building.

"We could see the people moving a little bit, but they never could get up and walk away," she reported. "The sniper would shoot at them again."

Miss Burger told of a police officer running and dust from bullets being kicked up just behind him.

Some of the persons in the tower came outside to see what was happening and were shot.

The gunman had two rifles, a sawed-off shotgun, a semi-automatic pistol, a hunting knife and a high-power magnum revolver.

BILL PUSHED

Thomas J. Dodd (Dem.-Conn.), chief U.S. Senate sponsor of the administration bill to control sale of firearms, said he hopes the shootings will spur its passage.

Whitman's father, C. A. Whitman, a prosperous plumbing contractor, said at Lake Worth, Fla., "my son has committed a crime that is a great horror to the whole world."

"He just snapped," the father added, "he had pushed himself tremendously in the last few months to do what was almost impossible."

He said his son pushed himself to the breaking point "trying to make a point," but he said he was unable to put into words what the son was trying to prove.

Crum, 40, the civilian who volunteered to go with the two officers to the top of the tower, had retired from military life 60 days earlier.

"I was a soldier all my life," he said. "I saw they needed help and I just volunteered. . . . I got deputized and borrowed a rifle."

He was assigned the job of protecting the backs of the officers as they hunted down the killer.

"I spent all my life flying as a gunner in the heavens (bombers)," he said, "and I never fired a shot."

Shoals Ahead

Mr. Roblin said there should be a conference to see whether or not "more acceptable" to my province but to all the provinces" can be arrived at.

"We feel that the federal government should abandon its medicare bill," Mr. Roblin said in an interview.

SET JULY 1 DEADLINE

Ottawa has set next July 1 as the deadline for provinces to set up medical care schemes that are universal, portable, government-run and compulsory. If these conditions are not met, a province will get no money from the federal government.

Mr. Campbell said also there should be federal-provincial talks on medical care insurance.

He said his province is "anxious to implement" a program of medical care insurance but it will "have extreme difficulty" in meeting Ottawa's deadline for assistance. The earlier the talks are the better, Mr. Campbell said.

The talks, he said, also should be in conjunction with the federal-provincial meetings this fall to discuss tax-sharing agreements that expire next March 31.

Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta said he opposes Ottawa's proposals because it would set up the "most costly, cumbersome plan" that can be imagined.

ATTITUDE WAS ADAMANT

Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia said the federal government has been adamant that conditions laid down for medical care assistance won't be changed.

"We haven't been too happy with the federal proposals," Mr. Stanfield said. "They are unnecessarily rigid."

The Nova Scotia premier said he favors a federal-provincial conference on the matter if "one is called."

Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick said there should be a federal-provincial conference only "to discuss the mechanics" of Ottawa's plans.

Premier John Roberts of Ontario has been almost non-committal on Ottawa's medical care proposals but has said the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan, introduced at this session of the legislature after stormy debate, probably meets federal requirements.

Ross Thatcher, the premier of Saskatchewan, was the only provincial chief interviewed Tuesday who seemed to favor Ottawa's intentions on medical care.

"We can't lose on the federal scheme," he told a reporter.

Trio Promoted At University

NELSON (CP)—The Board of Governors of Notre Dame University here announced Tuesday three faculty members have been promoted effective Sept. 1.

Dr. V. M. Parikh will be promoted to Assistant Professor, Department of Chemistry. S. P. Viswanathan will become Assistant Professor, Department of Physics, and P. J. Micallef becomes Assistant Professor, Department of Philosophy.

EXAMINE YOU FREE

"I want to make it clear that you incur no charge or obligation by seeing Mr. Arthur," director Harrison said.

"Your only obligation is to yourself—to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home treatment, we will frankly tell you so. But less than five per cent of the people we examine are 'hopeless.'"

OFFERS NO CURE-ALL

Harrison emphasized that his new home treatment is neither "mail-order" nor "cure-all."

"We always make a personal examination before suggesting any treatment," he pointed out. "There is no one cure-all that will correct every one of the 18 scalp disorders that cause most baldness."

Harrison said that sometimes your treatment must be changed after a few weeks to get best results. "For this reason, you mail regular reports of your hair progress to the Harrison headquarters in Vancouver."

Also, your scalp condition is checked personally by a Harrison trichologist at regular intervals.

WHO CAN BE HELPED?

Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No," said Harrison sincerely. "We cannot help men who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usually, we can grow more hair even where you have only 'fuzz' now."

The important thing is: Don't wait until it's too late. Best evidence of the success of Harrison treatment is the phenomenal growth behind it. Harrison and his staff trichologists do extension work in more than 100 other cities.

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here Thursday and Friday

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness—and growing thicker hair—will be demonstrated in Victoria this Thursday and Friday, August 4-5.

This news was released here today by M. D. Harrison, internationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists.

In his announcement, Harrison named staff trichologist Mr. John Arthur to conduct the Victoria clinic. Mr. Arthur will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday and Friday at the Hotel Sussex.

Leonard A. Floyd before and after scalp treatment. Unretouched photographs made four months apart.

"I want to make it clear that you incur no charge or obligation by seeing Mr. Arthur," director Harrison said.

"Your only obligation is to yourself—to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home treatment, we will frankly tell you so. But less than five per cent of the people we examine are 'hopeless.'"

"Our biggest problem is not in doing what we claim to do," declared Harrison. "We satisfy more than 95 per cent of our clients, and have records to prove it."

"But to overcome the average man's initial skepticism is sometimes difficult. He's usually quite desperate—and baldish—by the time he nerves himself to see a Harrison trichologist. He's 'tried everything.' So he starts consoling himself with one of the old superstitions about hair."

That baldness is hereditary; that men naturally lose hair as they get along in years; that nothing can be done to stop hair loss—and a lot of other notions that we know are not true today."

FREE SCALP EXAMINATION

See Mr. Arthur in person. Learn how baldness can be stopped, and new hair grown on your own scalp. The new Harrison method permits you to actually stop your baldness and regrow hair in the privacy of your own home.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk at the Hotel Sussex between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. for Mr. Arthur's appointment number.

You don't need a scalp treatment. You won't be embarrassed or obligated in any way. Examinations are given in private.

Sarcoidosis Often Mimics Symptoms of TB, Cancer

By JOSEPH MOINER, MD

Dear Dr. Moiner: What is sarcoid of the lung?—A.C.

Dear Doctor: Is there some medication for sarcoidosis? Just what is the disease?—A.G.

Sarcoidosis isn't the most prevalent of diseases but it affects many thousands, and because not a great deal is written about it (except in technical literature) a patient is naturally confused and bewildered when he learns he has it.

Sarcoidosis is a distinct entity, a disease separate from others, yet it has such a knack of mimicking other ailments that it can be very confusing until the diagnosis is confirmed.

It can attack the lung, causing lesions which so much resemble tuberculosis that it has been called "pseudo-T.B." It can cause skin lesions which resemble cancer, which it is not. Or it can look like a fungus infection. Again, it isn't, and it won't respond to anti-fungus therapy.

LYMPH GLANDS

It can, in fact, attack almost any part of the body, causing nodes or lumpy lesions. In about two-thirds of the cases, the lymph glands will be involved, the skin in one-third, the eye, liver or spleen in about one-fifth. (It can, you understand, attack in more than one part of the body at the same time.) It affects men more often than women; Negroes are somewhat more subject to sarcoid of the skin.

There you have a rough idea of what sarcoid is—lesions, lumps, swellings. With skin lesions present, you can see them, and the ailment is readily detected, although it may take time to determine exactly what it is. Frequently, there are no particular symptoms. Often it is discovered only by accident, when the chest is being X-rayed, or the eyes are being examined. Consequently we have reason to suspect that sarcoidosis may in reality be more prevalent than we realize.

To top it all, we don't know what causes sarcoidosis. There is a suspicion that it may be from an organism similar to the tuberculous bacillus, but this has not been proved and may not be true anyway. Sarcoid is not contagious or infectious, which is good to know, but raises a doubt as to whether the cause is a germ of some kind, or whether it is an organism unlike the ones we are familiar with.

Johnson Requests Strike Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson sent word to the Senate Tuesday that he wants legislation that would halt the U.S. airline strike—but without saddling him with responsibility for ordering the machinists' union back to work.

Key North Port

Storage Depots Struck Again By U.S. Planes

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. planes struck Tuesday for a third time at the oil storage depots outside North Viet Nam's key port of Haiphong, the U.S. defence department announced in Washington. North Viet Nam charged earlier that U.S. planes raided Haiphong Tuesday, "indiscriminately bombing residential quarters and factories."

The oil depot is situated in the Haiphong dock area two miles northeast of the heart of the city.

'ALL ON TARGET'
The defence department statement said:

"There were numerous missions by U.S. aircraft against POL (petroleum, oil, lubricant) targets in North Viet Nam. . . one of these missions was down against the Haiphong POL storage area. Preliminary reports

Stop War, Thais Ask Reds

BANGKOK, Thailand (Reuters)—Thailand has asked the Soviet Union to stop aid to Hanoi, call a peace conference and stop the Vietnamese war, informed sources said.

It is the Soviet Union's duty as co-chairman with Britain of the 1954 Geneva conference ending the Indochina war, Thai Foreign Minister Thanat Khomutong told Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Volkov at a recent meeting here, the sources said. He said the Soviet Union could show she is peace-loving by using its influence with the North Vietnamese government to stop Hanoi aggression in South Viet Nam.

Barefoot Rescuer Student Braved Bullets

By JACK KEEVER

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Cliff Drummond, president of the University of Texas' student body of 26,000, nursed blistered feet Tuesday. They were burned when he ran barefoot Monday through Austin's hot, bullet-scarred streets, pulling a sniper's victims to safety, said Drummond.

"It's a little hard to walk," the slender, 22-year-old pharmacy senior from western Texas was one of the first to hear the shots. Drummond stripped off his leather-heeled shoes, socks, coat and tie and for the next 1½ hours ran and rode up the campus' main street trying to carry wounded persons out of range of the well-aimed shots of Charles Joseph Whitman.

"I was meandering along when I heard two shots," said Drummond.

"I still didn't believe it was happening until puffs of smoke floated up from the top of the tower."

"Then people began to fall and I realized I was in the open, an easy target."

He ran into a nearby building, shed coat and shoes and grabbed a couple of white knee-length pharmacy coats to use as bandages.

He ran out of the building on the side away from the sniper, sped across the wide street and pulled a boy or young man—he wasn't sure—behind a car as bullets ripped into some wooden construction frames and the pavement.

Another student, Bob Higley Jr. of Austin, was with him. The car roared around the corner and into a sheltering alley. They jumped out and into an ambulance.

Working with the ambulance crew, who took off their white coats so they wouldn't be such good targets, Drummond and Higley hauled in another man and, moving fast under cover of some smoke flares at an empty intersection, carried two girls into the safety of a building. He said he thought they were just wounded, not dead.

Resignation Rumor Dispelled

Red Chief Re-Elected

MOSCOW (Reuters) — A healthy, acknowledged the applause with a nod of his head. Under the Soviet constitution, the government must submit itself for re-election to the new parliament after the quadrennial general elections. Press reports that Kosygin intended to resign gained no support from usually reliable sources here, and diplomatic observers said they felt he had been coming more and more to the fore of public life during the last few months.

One proposal the delegates are expected to discuss today in both houses—the Council of the Union and the Council of Nationalities—will be the creation of more parliamentary commissions to increase the Supreme Soviet's role in the national economy.

Brezhnev himself called for a greater role for the Supreme Soviet at April's 23rd congress of the Communist party and suggested the creation of special commissions to keep a closer control over the work of government ministries.

Confusing Issue

PREMIER BENNETT talks in conundrums when he says that the next provincial election will be fought on one issue alone—the choice between the return to power of a “non-partisan” Social Credit government or “the type of chaos we have in Ottawa today.”

This is a theme Mr. Bennett introduced in the federal election campaign last fall, when he was anxious that nobody in British Columbia, “but nobody,” should help elect a Liberal candidate. He asked the people of the province to send east 15 “non-partisan” Social Credit MPs to wake up the national government and help develop all Canada. If the electors understood him they didn’t heed him; they sent three.

But it is doubtful that anyone could then untangle the mystery of how a political party could be called non-partisan. It is equally doubtful now.

Perhaps the premier has his own definition of non-partisanship. He refers to his administration as having participation from all levels of society, which is scarcely unique and has nothing to do in the ordinary sense with the subject. Other than that he has offered no explanation.

A partisan according to dictionaries is an adherent of a party or cause, especially an unreasoning one. Mr. Bennett may claim that the adherents of his party are all reasoning citizens, and thus scrape by with a semantic let-out. So may the leaders of the other political groups, if they wish to do battle in this field.

But the premier’s assertions would seem to imply that the Social Credit MLAs would never think of putting party advantage first and any other consideration second. And this will just not go down.

Granted, partisanship has been overdone in Ottawa, in a minority-government situation, to the detriment of the country’s business. But if Mr. Bennett were the leader of a splintered, majority Opposition in the House of Commons, or a minority party in power, can we believe the striving for ascendancy would be any less?

“When the election comes it will be fought on this issue and this issue alone,” the premier told his cheering supporters—or partisans—at the Kelowna rally celebrating 14 years of Social Credit government.

If this is to be the only issue in the campaign, it will have to be stated in much more lucid terms. Or else most of the voters will be going to the polls in confusion.

But perhaps a simpler issue can be found before the election: such as whether Mr. Bennett’s government has been doing a good job. And there may be others, besides. The premier is not the sole arbiter of what may be said in one of the most partisan of struggles, the contest for ballots.

Course of Conscience

REAR ADMIRAL Michael Grote Stirling has quit the service he loved because, as a man of honor, he could no longer accept a directive of government which in his mind would be disastrous to the efficiency of the defence of Canada.

Admiral Stirling resigned because, as a man of wide military experience, he fears the result of an impetuous minister’s decision to complete the unification of the armed forces of the country.

Like other senior officers before him who have sacrificed their careers in protest against what their specialized training warns them is disruptive policy, the admiral believes unification will result in the creation of “an amorphous mass of men without identity.” He believes that such a force would be incapable of fulfilling the nation’s international commitments and impossible to integrate with the orthodox arms of our allies.

He spoke, in his farewell message on the day of his official retirement, of the danger of the loss of esprit de corps by reason of the relinquishment of the three services’ identities. For, like many another serviceman and former member of the armed forces, he appreciates the value of this nebulous attribute which makes for loyalty and high morale.

Admiral Stirling had been in uniform since 1933 and reached flag rank in 1962. It is a pity that his diversified technical experience, his organizational abilities and, above all, his leadership are lost to the nation in a critical period.

But he could not concur in what his conscience told him was a dangerous policy; he could not accept a course which his experience warned him would mean unwarranted risk.

He and the other dissenting officers whom he has joined in retirement, enforced or otherwise, at least have left with the country they served so well and so long a stern warning we would be wise to heed.

Faster Slowly

THE BRITISH Columbia Ferry Authority likely will be using hovercraft between Vancouver Island and the mainland within 10 years, according to Mr. Monty Aldous, the general manager. So fast has the development of these conveyances been that there is apt to be some disappointment that a closer date for their adoption is not contemplated. Already a hovercraft ferry service is in operation across the English Channel; as much as 10 years from now might seem thoroughly behind the times for British Columbia.

However, a word can be said for continuing a wait-and-consider attitude.

The hovercraft, gliding on its skirted cushion of air, has reached the state where it can operate over high waves and fairly rough ground without damage; a recently tested model can carry 30 automobiles and travel at a speed of almost 60 miles an hour.

Presumably it will not be long before these vehicles can lift still bigger loads and travel still faster; their cost also is declining.

But with the best radar and other navigational equipment in the world, who would fancy zipping along at 80 miles an hour in a fog? And what would happen to a regular service based on that speed if it had to be cut on occasion to say 10 miles an hour?

It may be that the hovercraft will prove of value for a special service, over and above the ordinary runs now provided, but that it will not fully take the place of the conventional ferries in a decade or over.

Thinking Aloud

By TOM TAYLOR

I WAS not taken back to have a reader telephone me after the Wembley soccer classic to say that it wasn't England which invented the game of football. His heritage I won't mention; probably you can guess.

But he would be as far off the beam as the most erudite authorities on the subject. Britain was certainly the home of the game that now engages 70 or 80 nations and was watched on TV last Saturday by an estimated 400 million viewers.

But where football originated lies back in the mists of time and no one knows for sure. In one form or another it has been played for long past centuries. In what would be a footnote to the North Koreans of this year's World Cup put in a claim to be the originators. That wasn't actually as big a surprise as the unusually fine showing they made in the playoff stages. I for one wasn't aware they ever knew what a football was.

Another was said once that Adam was the first footballer of all time, and that his ball was the apple of Eden fame; kicking it when he was ejected from the Garden.

What is more authentic but will no doubt amaze you as it does me is that Oliver Cromwell was a footballer. Not quite up to Wembley standards, I suppose, but in his letters apparently he makes several references to the game; particularly that he feared one opponent who always tripped him.

The Greeks had a game resembling soccer, as we call it here, and the Romans played with a large inflated ball called a follis.

There is nothing new under the sporting sun, you see.

But of a certainty soccer was played widely in both England and Scotland from whence came the modern form of the football on view in the Wembley match that thrilled all television viewers.

Unlike Cromwell, who was an addict before he became head of state, the crowned head of Britain didn't come to the sport as he had done. Away back in 1349 Edward III ordered his Sheriffs to "suppress such idle practices." In 1572 Queen Elizabeth issued a proclamation that "football may be used or suffered within the city of London."

Up in the northern half of the later Great Britain kings also took a dim view of what was becoming a popular pastime. James III in 1457 decreed that "football and galle be utterly cryed down," and 30 years later his successor also prohibited it.

The game would not down however. It was a rougher game in olden times even than some of the World Cup matches, presumably because there were no referees. Centuries ago on a Shrove Tuesday at Chester, England, so a contemporary historian cites, the head of a Dane who had been captured and slain was used as the ball.

And long before that, according to the claims of the city of Derby, football was invented to celebrate a victory of British warriors over a Roman cohort in 217 A.D.

Soccer, then, is like the hen and the egg; it seems to know when it first began to flower. And nowadays monarchs baffle their predecessors by presenting the winning trophy, vide the Queen at Wembley.

And to the 400 million TV viewers who were glued to the small screen last Saturday morning, it does not matter. It is enough for them that this global pastime is theirs for both playing and watching.

More Parade than March

By NEAL ARCHERSON from Bucharest

NOT with soldiers but with scholars, not with mass rallies but with anniversary celebrations, Romania pursues her campaign against the Soviet Union. It is more of a parade than a march, designed to accelerate the Romanian public at least as much as to give the Russians any wound deeper than annoyance.

At the Warsaw Pact meeting in Bucharest, Romania's party leader, Mr. Nicolae Ceausescu, used all his supple diplomatic talent to achieve two aims: to maintain the outward unity of the pact while raising Soviet wishes to integrate more closely the alliance and the East European economic community. Comecon. To impress both the Romanians themselves and the Russians with his determination to press on with his "national Communist" line, Ceausescu's most painful wound in the last few years has been a highly traditional one. He has raised grievances about frontiers.

There are four frontier regions in Romania where there is an active or quiescent dispute: Transylvania, the Soviet part of Bessarabia, the Dobruja, and Bukovina. In one, Transylvania, the Romanians are in possession, and it is their Hungarian neighbors who nurse the grudge. In a second, the South Dobruja, which passed to Bulgaria during the Second World War, the Romanian claim is weak and has been left on the shelf.

It is the claims to Bessarabia and — since the beginning of the war — to the Soviet part of Bessarabia, the Dobruja, which Mr. Ceausescu is now using to embarrass the Soviet Union. Both lie along the north and northeast borders. Romania was only constituted as a state in 1878 and ruled these territories only between 1918 and 1940. In that year, as the party journal Lupta de Clasa puts it, "after ultimative demands by the Soviet government, they were turned into the U.S.S.R." More bluntly, they were seized.

At the time the Romanian Communist Party did not object. As long ago as 1921, just after its foundation, the party agreed — probably under pressure — to campaign for the return of Bessarabia to Russia.

Romania's Clash with Russia half and its capital, Cernavoda, passing to the Romanians.

This year Mr. Ceausescu set out on an oratory tour, in the grand Gaullist manner, round South Bukovina. He visited monasteries, preached about medieval Romania's cultural roots in the region, and at Suceava addressed the crowd as "Romanians." Recently the party press was full of articles and pictures celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Putna monastery, burial place of King Stephen who once ruled all the Bukovina.

The anti-Russian implications are not lost on the Soviet Union, whose diplomats may now only travel within a 25-mile radius of Bucharest without permission. Nor were they lost on the Romanians, who exult in the feeling that they are once again asserting themselves nationally. They have not forgotten their two or three million lost citizens in Soviet Moldavia, subjected in 1940 and after the war to mass deportations, and still to cultural Russification. The few Bessarabians who filter back find Bucharest today a revelation of freedom and prosperity. A Westerner must hold less excited views. The Ceausescu style produces more circuses than bread, a color trooping of national emotion while the ordinary Romanians stay poor and closely policed. Even so, the last few years have brought some economic improvements and a welcome loosening of tongues. But the Romanians must still wait for leave to travel abroad or to attend a Western reception.

There is something calculated as well as daring in the new Romanian policy. This is just as well. It is bad enough to have one frontier quarrel in Europe, with West Germany claiming the borders of 1937, without acquiring a fresh threat to European peace in the Balkans. But Mr. Ceausescu cannot really hope that the great Soviet Union will disgorge Bessarabia and Bukovina to keep Romania quiet. He is seriously claiming, rather than seriously claiming, this makes the Romanians feel proud, and makes the Russians put a high price on Mr. Ceausescu's sustenance value.

Island of Martinique

Journey Back in Time

By PHILIP DEANE

It was cut off from the world. In the Second World War, Martinique was still cut off from the world.

Martinique is still cut off from the world. It is, therefore, charmingly square, an island dancing to the tunes that mark one as a parent in the North American continent.

At the Lido, the hotel with the head of Mr. Landon who built himself not only as an author but as an "interpreter," the 2 per cent minority of local white landowners, shuffle dreamily as we did in the crowded dance floor in the Second World War.

achieved, on the surface at least, an enviable harmony, even contentment of sorts among the people. Yet the standards are low, there is poverty, the Beke own large estates and the ordinary peasant, when he is not cutting cane for the rich, scratches a living from small parcels of land. There hardly is any industry, except for processing sugar. Tourism has remained undeveloped.

But there are fine new schools and scholarships and bursaries for the bright students to attend French universities.

And they go there as first-class French citizens, returning to speak forever after, and with fondness, of the redaily open society that is France. So there hardly is any talk of autonomy, no demands for political reforms. The people elect deputies to the French parliament in Paris, and are run from Paris in all except municipal affairs which are the province of locally elected mayors.

There is little resentment of outsiders; a little indifference perhaps, much like one encounters in France, but no resentment. One feels that even the current effort to build tourist facilities will not affect basic Martinique attitudes. They will remain themselves, which is fine because this will afford the North American traveller the chance to see one more island on which his benevolent presence has not produced unenviable side-effects, as it has in the U.S. Virgin Islands, for instance.

Perhaps the historical bonds with France are strong enough to withstand all countervailing pressures. After all, a local girl, Josephine, was crowned in Notre Dame, "Empress of the French." She is the familiar local deity and symbol of an abiding relationship. In the Second World War, Martinique remained loyal to Paris and never joined de Gaulle. As she sheltered a French aircraft carrier, she was blockaded by the allies who feared the Germans might use the ship. The island remained faithful to France, emerging from the war starved and ragged, isolated, and out of touch. It is still catching up.

It should be no business of other countries to tell Latin American nations what forms of government they should, or should not have. And there certainly were extenuating circumstances in the Argentine case, stemming from the recent popular upsurge of Peronist activity, and from the country's economic problems.

Nevertheless, it is impossible to take any satisfaction from the recent trend towards military dictatorship in Latin America, the trend-setter for which has been the Brazilian dictatorship of General Branco.

Whatever success these regimes may have in rooting out corruption, in stabilizing currencies or in encouraging foreign investment, their success is built on an original failure, the failure of self-government.

Every army in Latin America — including those already in power — will take heart from the Argentine coup. With two of the most important South American nations, Brazil and Argentina, in military hands, why should any other hold back?

Constitutionally It Couldn't Be Enforced
Wilsonian 'Freeze' Impossible in Canada

By JAMES NELSON from Ottawa

The British government's white paper on its prices and incomes freeze is a document that, in a Canadian context, would send shivers down the spines of the politicians.

Constitutionally it couldn't be enforced in Canada. Politically it would be impractical. Economically it would represent almost the last gasp of a mutually sick country.

The document is entitled A Price and Incomes Standstill. And it means just that. Wage and price increases are to be halted for the balance of this year. They will be permitted in the first half of next year only with severe restraint.

Israel Faces Austerity Period

Reuters, from Jerusalem

The Israeli government is putting the final touches to economic austerity measures which observers said appear to be based on Britain's economic program.

The Israeli plan envisages a wage freeze as well as the freezing of prices and profits for a definite period, Israeli newspapers say.

Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir has repeatedly said in recent weeks that Israel must slice its foreign-trade deficit. His program calls for additional incentives for export industries.

But expansion in industries that are already hard-pressed to meet the demand is still exerting strong upward pressures on prices. Trade Minister Winters re-echoed the call for restraint this week when he made public a mid-year report on capital investment plans.

to close down unless they became competitive in world markets.

Israel's new economic measures have already rocked the coalition government in which some of the partners, such as the left-wing Mapam, are sharply opposed to the new plan, especially a wage freeze.

In the last few weeks previous conditions of a labor shortage in Israel have given way to the first signs of unemployment.

Under pressure from Sapir, the Histadrut (the general trade union movement) last month agreed to waive a cost-of-living increase which was due in July.

industries coming under direct federal jurisdiction such as interprovincial communications.

But even then, in the private sector of the economy under federal jurisdiction, wage bargaining and pricing of commodities are among property and civil rights coming under provincial jurisdiction.

Moreover, governments can count on parliamentary support for unwelcome but necessary measures only when they have recently emerged with a strong free-trade mandate from the voters.

Prime Minister Wilson has a good working majority for his Labor party. He was assured of Commons approval of the measures, whatever the opposition parties said.

Prime Minister Pearson has not got that comforting assurance. His government's measures must be amenable to change to meet opposition pressures.

In curbing price and wage increases, Mr. Wilson can say "thou shalt not." Mr. Pearson can only say "please don't."

'Bourgeois Conspiracy' in Army High Command

Red China Admits Major Mutinies

By ROBERT S. ELEGANT from Hong Kong

Peking revealed yesterday that three major mutinies among the high command against the Communist party's direction which they ordered and policies had shaken

China's armed forces since 1953. The Communists indicated that the most recent "struggle in armed forces" was part of the "bourgeois conspiracy" to

The statement came on the heels of the announcement that Lo Jui-ching had been relieved as chief of staff of the armed forces, a position he had held since 1958.

The Liberation Army Daily made the latest revelation in an editorial marking the 35th anniversary of the uprising at Nanchang, which is celebrated as the birth of the Communist military forces. The army's organ declared that each of three "great class struggle" had culminated in a "brilliant victory for the doctrines of Mao Tse-tung."

The professionals argued for abolition of the sprawling peoples militia and the local armed forces, as well as for relieving officers of the surveillance of military commissars.

Analysis in Hong Kong felt that the professionals have time and again warned Mao that they could not be responsible for the defence of China in the conflict his foreign policy might produce unless they were given modern weapons and the opportunity to create a modernized, mechanized army. In the course of the three "struggles" now revealed, the professionals have been cashing in on their pains. And Communist China's army still remains essentially the guerrilla force which carried Mao to power in China and which, his orthodox supporters maintain, can bring China victory in the worldwide power struggle.

'No Bombs' Demand

Inter-Planetary Laws Debated

By ROBERT HUTCHISON, from Geneva

With man's first decade in space drawing to a close, legal experts from 28 nations have convened here to extend the rule of international law to the moon and other planets.

From Sputnik I, launched on Oct. 4, 1957, to the Surveyor I mooncraft, science fiction dreams have come true. Now the jurists, members of the United Nations legal subcommittee on the peaceful uses of outer space, are faced with an urgent task because the day is not far off when man will walk on the moon. This may be in another three or four years.

Both the United States and Russia, who jointly called the meeting, have tabled their own draft treaties before the committee, and India has promised a third.

Although to some extent different in scope, the drafts are remarkable for their similarities. Their main feature is a "No Bombs in Space" provision.

The confrontation of the two great space powers across the conference table is regarded as a good omen for East-West relations. It is optimistically felt that the committee will be able to agree upon a common treaty text covering all aspects of outer space exploration.

If it does it will be submitted to the 21st UN general assembly in New York this autumn for ratification.

First Met in 1959

The UN committee on the peaceful uses of outer space first met in 1959.

However, for the first four years of its existence it was boycotted by the Soviet Union.

In 1963 the committee drew up a set of international law principles governing outer space activities. And on the committee's recommendation the general assembly passed the 1963 "No Bombs in Orbit" resolution. But UN resolutions are not legally binding, and since then the committee has reached no agreement.

The principal difference between the two drafts is that the American version includes a reporting provision, requiring that descriptions of all outer space explorations be filed with the UN secretary general.

The Soviets, on the other hand, have a much more elaborate "lost and found" clause calling for the return of lost astronauts and vehicles. It goes far beyond the American article on mutual assistance between spacemen.

Both drafts cover only natural celestial bodies and not man-made space objects. They both prohibit national appropriation of space bodies by claim of sovereignty, but insist that launching states retain ownership of objects landed, constructed or used on a celestial body.

Other Provisions

Other provisions call for freedom of scientific investigation, open access to all celestial bodies, outer space exploration for peaceful purposes only, and the avoidance of all harmful contamination of other planets.

The key clauses of both drafts centre around a "No Bombs in Space" provision. The Soviets want to ban the placing in orbit of any objects carrying nuclear weapons, as well as the stationing of such weapons on celestial bodies.

A similar American article is based on the successfully implemented Antarctic Treaty and requests all states "to refrain from conducting on celestial bodies any activities such as the establishment of military fortifications, the carrying out of military manoeuvres, or the testing of any types of weapons."

The only other feature not included in both drafts is the American provision that disputes arising from the interpretation or application of a moon treaty may be referred to the International Court of Justice for decision. No Soviet comment has been forthcoming on this item.

If the subcommittee can agree upon an outer space treaty it will be the first accord of world importance to come out of the United Nations since the 1963 signing of the Test Ban Treaty.

NASA vs Viet Nam

LAT, from Washington

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has prepared a record $2,000,000,000 budget for the next fiscal year in an effort to carry the momentum of the moon race into a new generation of space exploration.

Despite the cost of the war in Viet Nam, which has top priority, the proposal is an effort to revamp from cutbacks this year and simultaneously study future space efforts such as manned flights to the planets.

Besides the $2,000,000,000 proposal, the space agency has outlined an alternative "austerity" program totaling $3,500,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning next July 1. Both are now being studied by the Budget Bureau.

Realtors Win Price

Two Victoria realtors have fought an expropriation battle with the B.C. highways department and won. Morris Lund and Clarence Pullan were awarded $40,750 Monday by County Court Judge M. L. Tyrwhitt-Drake, arbitrator in the case. The highways department had offered the two businessmen $21,500 for 7.54 acres of wooded land south of Cordova Bay Road and several hundred feet east of Santa Clara Avenue.

The offer was not accepted and the land was expropriated by the department Nov. 7, 1965. The owners had shown interest in the land in the latter part of 1963 when they offered $25,000 for it, and the then owner refused to sell. A similar offer was made and rejected the following year.

It was not until March, 1965, that the land became available for sale, at which time an offer of $18,000 was made and accepted.

Grounded Stewardess 'Go-Goes' for the Rent

NEW YORK — An Eastern Airlines stewardess is working as a go-go dancer two nights a week in Boston to pay the rent during the airlines strike.

"I had no choice," said Julie Martakla of Lynn, Mass., a stewardess on the New York-Boston shuttle run. "My room-mates in New York are also stewardesses so somebody had to come up with the rent. Besides, it's been fun."

But it hasn't been fun for thousands of other non-striking employees of the five airlines grounded by the 26-day strike of the International Association of Machinists (IAM-CIO).

LONDON — Sir John Glubb, the almost legendary "Glubb Pasha" who commanded the Arab Legion until King Hussein of Jordan fired him 10 years ago, is going to Yale University in October on a special fellowship. Sir John said he may give a lecture on Arab affairs during his three-week visit.

KELOWNA — Two more universities will be built by the provincial government within the next seven years to help educate British Columbia's exploding population, Premier Bennett said here. He would not say when or where.

LONDON — Former top Rhodesian politician Sir Roy Welensky says there were no signs of Rhodesia capitulating to British pressure designed to end the former colony's independence. Sir Roy, former premier of the now defunct Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, arrived to attend the world title fight between Cassius Clay and Brian London and to see "old friends."

Trouble Came With Cash

ANZIO, Italy (UPI) — An 11-year-old boy with an adult Fiat stole $180 from a parked car and then made the rounds of the local bars.

Police said the lad's father was beating him for coming home drunk when the remainder of the stolen money fell out of the boy's pocket.

The father, snatched it up, gave some to his wife, then buried the rest in the garden.

Police picked up the trail of the free-spending boy and arrested the father for complicity in theft and receiving stolen goods. The boy was not charged because of his age.

Pool Decision Delayed By Saanich

Saanich council Monday night indicated approval for the idea of a $195,000 Gordon Head community hall and swimming pool.

The development will be done under a local improvement bylaw which will be voted on by the ratepayers.

A delegation from the Gordon Head Mutual Improvement Society asked council to set the vote for Oct. 22.

OLD LIST

Council pointed out that an October vote would necessitate the use of a year-old voters' list, and it was added that using the old list might have a decided effect on the outcome of the vote.

Retail Merchants Hit Night Shopping

Policeman Injured, Man Shot

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Ernest Woodman of New Harbor, Nfld., was in serious condition in hospital Tuesday night following a shooting at his home in which an RCMP officer received an eye injury.

Police said Cpl. M. Evans of the Whitbourne detachment went with another RCMP officer to investigate reports of a shooting at New Harbor when the incident occurred.

Cpl. Evans sustained a cut over one eye and Woodman received a bullet wound in the abdomen. Police refused to disclose further details.

The Retail Merchants Association of Canada (B.C. Division) is seeking provincial government support in a bid to curtail night shopping to Friday night only.

The association has submitted a brief to Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell proposing amendments to the Municipal Act pertaining to shop closing hours.

The merchants claim that the proposed amendments would:

- Put control under the proper authority
- Provide more by regulation than by bylaw
- Better define the corner store
- Provide regulations to make the regulations more enforceable

Enclosed with the brief was a petition showing signatures of 604 store owners, managers, clerks and other interested parties.

Tank Farms Problem

There are more than 13,000,000 gallons of gasoline stored in the tank farm area of the city's Industrial Reserve, and Fire Chief James Allen is worried about it, members of city council public works committee were told Tuesday.

No more bulk storage permits will be given until a comprehensive report has been made on the whole question.

Chief Allen is particularly worried about some of the tank farm areas. They are old, and some have cracks. It was a question of whether or not they would hold liquid, said City Manager Dennis Young.

And there was the matter of access to the tank farm area. The chief is also unhappy about getting equipment to a fire if one should break out. He was contemplating restricting storage until better roads were built to the district.

"And I should point out here that the city is not condoning such an action. It was told that, in the light of the investigation and report, the city might have to be removed or altered."

Mr. Young said that the extension without knowledge of city authorities was "just one of those things." The area was not well policed, he admitted.

Pending ratification by city council, permission was given to Victoria Flying Services Ltd. to enlarge the municipally-installed dock on the south side of the Inner Harbor, which is there for the convenience of visiting flyers.

The company will add 20 feet to each end of the dock and install lights and rubber bumpers. It will operate a charter service from downtown Victoria to any part of the province.

Fashion Critic Topless To Her Toes

HAMILTON (CP)—Topless and see-through fashions are degrading, a young and shapely blonde from Toronto said here. She wore only a wristwatch, herself.

"Women who wear such revealing fashions that just show a bit are just exploiting sex or merely attempting to be the centre of attention," she said.

The blonde was one of 1,500 nudists from Canada and the United States who attended a weekend convention of the Eastern Sunbathing Association at Ponderosa Nature Park.

"Nudists have no respect for such exhibitionists," she added.

The nudists are also disturbed over magazines that sell sex under the guise of nudism.

"This gives people a distorted view of nudism and its purposes," one woman said. "It's a shame because nudism is a wonderful experience."

Battles Rage In Africa

BEIRA, Mozambique (Reuters)—Portuguese troops and guerrillas have been engaged in heavy fighting in northern Mozambique close to the Tanzanian border, said a Portuguese Army communiqué issued here Tuesday.

The communiqué, covering operations for the second half of July, said the guerrillas infiltrated from Tanzania.

Heavy fighting took place at Olivença in Mozambique's northeastern corner, about 12 miles from Tanzania, where an army camp was attacked with mortars, the communiqué said.

The invaders were repelled by the troops and suffered heavy losses. There also was fighting at Mocimboa do Rovuma, about eight miles from the Tanzanian border.

REBEL LOSSES

The communiqué said that during the second half of July rebel losses were more than 100. Large quantities of arms and ammunition were seized and several guerrilla camps destroyed. Four Portuguese soldiers were killed in action.

Warm, Cloudless Days Increase Fire Hazard

Tension was mounting across the vast tracts of British Columbia's forests Tuesday as cloudless skies and high temperatures sent fire hazard indicators moving steadily upward.

Up to the end of last week, the forest service reported that only $429,000 had been spent on fire control throughout the province since the first of the year.

During the same period last year, costs were more than double this figure at $999,100.

FEWER BLAZES

The actual number of fires, too, is down. So far in 1966, 1,151 fires have been fought to a standstill while in the corresponding period of 1965, 1,637 fires were recorded.

Low to moderate fire hazards prevailed in most areas of the province Tuesday but, if fine weather continues as expected, hazards will be high by week's end.

In the Vancouver fire district, which also covers the Island forests, only $9,000 has been spent on 203 fires this year. Last year, expenditure for the same period was 10 times as high, with $83,000 required to quell 364 fires.

ISLAND TOTAL

A total of 62 fires were burning last week, with 76 new blazes reported during the same period. Altogether, 90 fires were extinguished in the week with 48 still burning at the weekend.

Estimated firefighting costs for the week were $25,000.

THE WORLD POPULATION WILL DOUBLE IN 36 YEARS

Obviously this will be good for our young Canadian economy, called on the huge untapped resources to meet the ever-increasing demands of all countries.

In the resulting clash of enterprises, antiquated services will disappear — services based on new services will appear. Some will lose, some will win and stay on to become institutional.

Many businesses, old and new, will continue to survive to experience the forward shift and flow of income to their respective stages and in the "long haul" provide a reasonably assured growth for the investor.

But, through it all, the Heritage business will carry on within its own frame, private sphere — unshaken — economically or psychologically, the assurance of a steady income or growth, without fluctuation, that investment investments never had.

Victoria Mortgage Corporation offers 11% on 2-year debentures; 11% 5% years; 7% 1 year (all payable before maturity in case of death). Interest paid quarterly (on compounded on payment). Current Mortgage average 30% of appraised security. Home Cash — further reduces the debenture holder. No acquisition cost. For prospectus to be mailed to you, please Douglas Macdonald, 274-6-7138.

Knee Acting Up

Crippled Shortstop May Move to Third

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Maury Wills, the base-stealing shortstop of the Los Angeles Dodgers, says he may have to play third base for the rest of the National League season.

Wills played third Monday night in Pittsburgh for the first time in two years because of his twisted, swollen and heavily bandaged right knee. John Kennedy was at shortstop most of the game.

It long has been manager Walt Alston's feeling that Wills could prolong his baseball career by shifting to third base but any such decision is a matter of time and the condition of the knee.

A club spokesman said it now is obvious that Wills can not move as swiftly in either direction as when he is sound and that playing third would be to his advantage.

And Others Must Lose

Win All—or Out Rule for Rocks

Victoria Shamrocks must win all their remaining games—including tonight's at Memorial Arena against Coquitlam Adanacs—and their opposition for the final playoff spot in the Inter-City Lacrosse League has to keep losing.

It is as simple as that, following Vancouver's 11-8 win over New Westminster at Kerrisdale Arena Tuesday.

The Rocks have four games left and will lose New Westminster by seven points, with Belles having three games remaining. A New Westminster win or a Victoria loss will end it.

And the Rocks trail second-place Vancouver by eight points. Even if they won all their games, place Vancouver by eight points, still be only a tie.

The worst of it is the Rocks have two games left against Vancouver, but none against New Westminster. And the fact New Westminster and Vancouver still play each other once more doesn't make it any better.

Winnipeg Bombs Young Eskimos

WINNIPEG (CP)—Winnipeg Blue Bombers romped through the rookie-laden Edmonton Eskimos for a 26-7 Western Football Conference victory before 15,112 fans Tuesday night.

Jim Thomas reduced Eskimos' humiliation, sweeping left from his halfback slot to gallop 100 yards for a touchdown on the final play of the game. Tommy Joe Coffey converted. Bombers scored three touchdowns in the second quarter by Dave Raimy, Norm Rasmussen and Ken Nielsen as they gained a share of first place with Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Norm Winton kicked three field goals. The Eskimos' defense was ineffective, allowing 26 points. The Bombers' defense was solid, holding the Eskimos to 7 points.

Edmonton, breaking in 15 rookies, couldn't crack the Winnipeg defense sparked by linebacker Al Miller and Ullmer. Ploen, succeeded in the late stages by Dick Thornton, completed 16 of 26 passes for 246 yards. Raimy took five for 62 yards, Nielsen four for 49 and flanker Billy Cooper one for 48.

Edmonton line was a shade more effective than the pass-defence unit, holding the Bombers to 125 yards rushing, 39 by Raimy. Leo Lewis, in his 11th season as Bombers' halfback, grabbed Ploen's dump pass over the middle late in the first quarter and swept 28 yards down the left side to the Edmonton 28-yard line. Raimy swept 12 yards to the left for a touchdown on the first scrimmage of the second period.

In the ninth minute, Edmonton flanker Garry LeFebvre fumbled Ullmer's punt in the end zone and Rasmussen pounced on the ball. The second half, until Thomas' dazzling sprint, was utter frustration for Edmonton, victims of five touchdowns against Saskatchewan. They never crossed midfield and for most of the 30 minutes scrimmaged from inside their 25-yard line.

Cooper outpaced Eskimos' Art Johnson in the 13th minute to make a back-peddaling catch of Ploen's 48-yard pass on the Edmonton 10-yard line. Nielsen slipped to the end zone sideline to grab a seven-yard touchdown strike.

Nine in a Row?

Lions, Calgary Start Tonight

CALGARY — Can B.C. Lions make it nine in a row when they meet Calgary Stampeders at McMahon Stadium tonight?

The game, first for both clubs this football season, follows Lions' losses in all three pre-season games this year — and the Stampeders-Lions football game in Calgary tonight will be shown on Channel 8 beginning at 8 p.m., according to the network concerned.

B.C. also dropped its final five games in the 1965 season. Calgary had a 2-2 exhibition record. The eastern conference opens tonight with Montreal in Ottawa.

Lions coach Dave Skreim announced Tuesday night that Mack Burton and rookie Wayne Foster will not dress tonight. Steve Shafer will start in the defensive backfield.

Quarterback Joe Kapp is ready. He missed both the Ottawa and Hamilton exhibitions with a pulled hamstring muscle. The game is the first of three the Lions will play in 10 days. They come home for Edmonton Eskimos Monday, and the following Friday move into Regina to tackle Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Stampeders coach Jerry Williams is worried about end Herman Harrison's knee injury. The big end is expected to be out at least two weeks with torn knee cartilage. Eut Calgary gained some relief with the return of Frank Budd, ready to dress for the game.

Bisley Bids Toughen Up

Rain Dampens Riflemen

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP)—Rain put a damper on competition Tuesday as marksmen at the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association championships began competing in earnest for places on the Canadian team at the Commonwealth championships at Bisley, England, next year.

DCRA officials were forced to cancel the Gatineau match, which was to have been fired from 1,000 yards, shortly after a steady downpour began.

The first match counting toward the Bisley aggregate was fired in the morning. Nine marksmen scored 98 of a possible 100 points in the event, fired from 300 and 600 yards. To shoot off for top honors later.

Dick Hampton of Alliston, Ont., who won the Queen's Prize at Bisley last month; LAC Ernie Roger of the Canadian forces base at Namoo, Alta., another member of this year's Bisley team; Larry Fish, a member of the militia on Ontario cadet team the Senator McDonald competition. George Grivell of Victoria and five others had 99 points each in second place in the McDougall

'Bad Precedent'—Warren

Hydro Towers Will March Through Thetis Park

By A. H. MURPHY

Undimmed by three refusals, B.C. Hydro officials finally got permission Tuesday to cut a 100-foot-wide right-of-way across the south end of Thetis Lake Park for a power transmission line.

Parks committee members will recommend to city council that the persistent utility be allowed to drive its 1,100-foot-long line across the narrow end of a 31-acre, wedge-shaped piece of parkland south of the Trans-Canada Highway.

In return, the Hydro will give the city permanent title to a 48.9-acre piece of land adjacent to the park boundary on the north side of the highway.

L. E. Wight, regional manager of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, said that a minimum of one and maximum of three 60-foot towers would be built across the parkland.

Part of the land to be utilized is meadow and part bushland. The 100-foot swath through the wooded area will entail the loss of about 56 trees.

The permission was given over the strenuous objections of city parks administrator Herbert Warren, who maintained that aldermen should have refused the request as they did three times before.

Mr. Wight said it would cost the Hydro $20,000 more to build the power line outside the park boundaries. To put it under ground would cost $70,000 more than the present estimate.

Aldermen were influenced by the fact that the newest Hydro plan placed the transmission line farther south than previously proposed, with a consequent loss of fewer trees.

"This area, which is bounded by the highway and a couple of railway lines, is in the path of north-south development of southern Vancouver Island, and I can foresee that there will be many more requests for easements for oil and gas pipelines," said Mr. Wight.

As little damage as possible would be done by the right-of-way and "structures," as the towers are called, would be placed as inconspicuously as possible.

There would be 40 feet of clearance below the towers and the right-of-way land could be used for park purposes, he added.

"This has been turned down three times and should be refused again," Mr. Warren said.

"Conditions now are no different than they were before. Parks should be parks. It's a bad precedent to set," he added.

Pointing out that the public already had access rights to the 48 acres in the north, Mr. Warren said such deals with the government were "always a one-way street."

Questioned about the extra cost of putting the right-of-way outside the park, Mr. Wight said it was policy in a public utility to keep costs down. Any extra charges, he added, came out of the pockets of the people who pay the power bill — "and that means you and me."

The provincial government would start them off by taking land for highway widening.

There seemed to be a good deal of sympathy for the Hydro position — sympathy not in evidence at previous hearings.

The utility had done the best it could, said Ald. Hugh Stephen, and it looked as though the land south of the highway was going to be isolated in any event.

Motion to allow the right-of-way passed without a dissenting vote.

While only four out of eight aldermen were present, it appeared unlikely that the decision would be upset in full council. The mayor was present Tuesday and did not dissent. Even if the four absent aldermen opposed the action, his vote could break the deadlock.

Saanich Aghast

'This Isn't New York' Fire Report Reaction

By JIM BRAHAN

Saanich fire committee was rocked Tuesday night by the recommendations of the fire protection survey report.

At council's request the B.C. fire marshal's office at Vancouver conducted a survey of the municipality's fire protection and fire prevention facilities in mid-June.

The fire marshal's recommendations were that:

● The department staff be increased from the present 56 to 134.

● A training officer be appointed.

● The municipal fire code be used as a basis for promotions.

● A new fire hall be built at the corner of McKenzie and Patricia Bay Highway.

● A 100-foot aerial ladder apparatus be purchased.

Coun. Harold Todd said he had read many reports over the past years but this was the most "way out" of them all.

"If I had my way, which I don't, I'd consign it to the wastepaper basket."

He said the giant increase in manpower recommended in the report must have been based on New York figures.

Build Poorhouse Too

"This ridiculous figure seems to throw the whole report out," he said.

Coun. William Noel said, "If we are going to build all the fire houses recommended then we had better build poorhouses too. Because our taxpayers are going to have to live in them."

The survey obviously recommends the ultimate in fire protection service and it will be up to present and successive Saanich fire committees and councils to determine what fire service can be offered to the municipality in line with reasonable costs for that service.

Fire committee chairman Alan Newberry disagreed.

"The report of the fire marshal's office is a bold plan designed to guide the course of fire prevention and protection of this municipality."

Manpower Impractical

"The recommendation for a total of 134 men in the department must be considered as impractical for the immediate future at least."

He said the city of Victoria with its greater concentration of commercial buildings, high density areas, warehousing, industrial and marine development, is served by 104 men, plus a civilian secretarial staff.

"It cannot be denied that Saanich is still undermanned, but it is not economically feasible to follow this recommendation to the full. Nor can I believe such a large force is necessary."

He agreed with the recommended relocation of the fire hall at Elk Lake, and said it could be considered a priority item.

"The study is similar to the number which have been undertaken in the municipality in recent years and this latest will serve the people of Saanich well if it does nothing more than provoke careful and far-sighted discussion by members of council and our senior officials."

Guide for Future

"It provides important guide lines not only for the present but for a number of years to come," the reeve said.

He suggested the committee write to the fire marshal and indicate its surprise at the recommended heavy increase in staff.

"That would be the understatement of the year," he grinned.

Saanich controller-treasurer John Tribe said it would cost the municipality approximately $7,500 for each of the additional men, plus the expenses of the recommended additional equipment.

The report further said that few municipal fire departments are named to the recommended standard, but Saanich has problems that are not common.

The municipality has an area of 40 square miles, 58,000 population, a large number of buildings of a very large area, residential areas of high value, and topography that does not lend itself to fast dependable response.

Testing Site Will Be In Saanich

The provincial government confirmed Tuesday that a Saanich site will be used for construction of a motor vehicle testing station.

Motor Vehicles Superintendent Ray Hadfield said the station will serve Victoria and the Saanich Peninsula and will test such things as automobiles, mopeds, windshields, brakes, wheel alignment and truck and trailer assemblies.

At least half a dozen stations will be constructed to serve Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland in what has been estimated as a $2,000,000 program.

The Saanich station will consist of four lanes. Three will go into operation as soon as the building is completed and the fourth will be held in reserve.

Architect's plans and cost figures will be available within a few weeks, Mr. Hadfield said.

Herbie the Seal's Pal May Be Future Bride

Herbie the year-old bachelor seal at the Undersea Gardens has a girl friend, and he didn't even know it.

It took a scientist from Scripps Institute of Oceanography at La Jolla, Calif., to tell, and even then Herbie wasn't too sure.

"He's eating much better now," said a spokesman for the gardens Tuesday night, "so maybe he's catching on."

The scientist visited the gardens at Oak Bay Marina Tuesday and positively identified the two-week-old seal pup as female.

When the baby was brought in from Discovery Island by two fishermen, attendants didn't know whether to call it Chris or Christine. The baby started to follow everyone around, including Herbie and the gardens' divers, wanting to be mothered.

This got Herbie down. But things are looking up. He only has to wait a year or two for both of them to grow up. And then, perhaps, romance.

Testing Site Will Be In Saanich

The provincial government confirmed Tuesday that a Saanich site will be used for construction of a motor vehicle testing station.

Motor Vehicles Superintendent Ray Hadfield said the station will serve Victoria and the Saanich Peninsula and will test such things as automobiles, mopeds, windshields, brakes, wheel alignment and truck and trailer assemblies.

At least half a dozen stations will be constructed to serve Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland in what has been estimated as a $2,000,000 program.

The Saanich station will consist of four lanes. Three will go into operation as soon as the building is completed and the fourth will be held in reserve.

Architect's plans and cost figures will be available within a few weeks, Mr. Hadfield said.

Board Urged To Build Family Court

A suggestion that the five-month-old Regional District be the instrument to finance construction of a new Family and Children's Court building was made Tuesday by the Greater Victoria Inter-municipal Committee.

The proposal by which the regional board would finance and build the court and then lease it back to Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt at a rental calculated to meet annual debt charges, will be taken back to municipal councils.

At the same meeting, Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis indicated he would suggest that his council temporarily abandon its stand on cost-sharing of $6,000 for working drawings, so that the whole project could get off the ground.

COST-SHARING

Saanich has been insisting on a formula, suggested by provincial order-in-council, by which Victoria would pay 50 per cent of the $6,000, Saanich 22 per cent and the other two municipalities nine per cent each. The usual intermunicipal cost-sharing formula sees Victoria pay 41 per cent and Saanich 35.

As long as it is without prejudice to future capital cost and maintenance sharing, I think Saanich will go along with the usual formula on sharing the $6,000," Reeve Curtis said.

Reeve Allan Cox of Oak Bay said the proposal to make use of the regional board, outlined in a comprehensive report on the whole question prepared by City Manager Dennis Young, was a good one.

MOST BENEFIT

He pointed out that the bulk of the population in the four municipalities which make up the region (about 150,000) was served by the family court.

If it was not now, it would be in a few years, he suggested. The provincial government would see to that.

The matter will be discussed at the next meeting of the Capital Region District board.

If approved, the letters patent under which the board operates would have to be amended. It would add a fourth function to the regional district, which now includes parkland acquisition, supervision of the district sewer survey and firecracker control.

POOL PLAN

Recently, however, the board took on the financing of a recreation centre-swimming pool for the Colwood-Metchosin area, and it was this, said Mr. Young's report, which suggested that it might be used as an agency to finance and build the family court.

A further advantage to financing through the regional board was that the assent of owner-electors was not required to borrow for capital purposes and therefore "a construction start could undoubtedly be made in a matter of months," the report said.

Dr. Wright

Dr. Kenneth Wright, 55, has been appointed director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Saanich.

He succeeds Dr. Robert Petrie, Dominion Astronomer, who died suddenly April 8.

Dr. Wright announced Tuesday that friends of Dr. Petrie are establishing a memorial scholarship through the University of Victoria to aid students of astronomy. A committee has been created and will make a formal announcement this fall, he said.

B.C.-BORN

Born in Fort George, B.C., Dr. Wright studied at the University of Toronto and the University of Michigan. He joined the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in 1936 and has been here ever since, except for short periods.

In 1960 he was appointed assistant director of the observatory.

Dr. Wright was president of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada from 1964 to 1966.

Money Builds Healthier Britons

By BILL STAVDAL

Physical training in Great Britain is better than in B.C. because the British are willing to pay for it, says George Grant, director of physical education in Greater Victoria schools.

Mr. Grant, who has held his post here for 20 years, aired his view Tuesday after returning from a seven-week inspection tour in England and Scotland.

It was paid for by a $1,300 grant award from the division of fitness and sports of the federal department of health and welfare.

"I felt Britain was ahead in many respects," said Mr. Grant. "They are willing to pay for outstanding facilities."

He reported that Great Britain's equivalent of Canadian high schools make use of swimming pools and tennis courts and offer training in specialized sports like archery, rowing, fencing and even gliding.

One outstanding example, Foxford Comprehensive

School in Coventry, has three gymnasiums, a swimming pool, playing fields and a track, plus 13 tennis courts, said Mr. Grant.

Foxford has 1,300 pupils, about the size of Victoria senior high school. It has six full-time physical education teachers, compared with Vic High's three.

Every secondary school he visited had a trampolene, said Mr. Grant, and some also had miniature, one-man trampolines. Good rope fixtures were common.

"Another thing that surprised me was the number of swimming pools in schools," Mr. Grant said.

"Their swim program is 'way ahead of ours. They aren't interested in champions, just in everyone learning to swim."

In Greater Victoria, all pupils get eight swim lessons in Grade 5. In England they have a whole term of weekly swim lessons.

Mr. Grant also inspected facilities for physically and mentally handicapped children, including thalidomide victims with missing limbs.

"The British approach is to treat the children like normal ones, not fussing over them in the gym, he reported."

At Greenbank Special School in Liverpool, spastic children, polio cases and other physically handicapped youngsters join six thalidomide children—now five and six years old—doing their best on the equipment.

Mr. Grant said he will pass on his findings to district physical training teachers this winter.

Admiral Pays Calls

Incoming Rear Admiral J. A. Charles paid two courtesy calls and was given a 13-gun salute of welcome Tuesday.

The admiral called on Mayor A. W. Tse and Esquimalt Reeve R. T. Bryant who will return his calls today.

Wide Spread Wins Trial

The city will try a "one-shot" deal with a low tenderer to see how he does in keeping the civic windows clean.

In an effort to rectify a condition which had dragged on since November, 1965, and during which time municipal windows have been cleaned only once, the public works committee recently called for tenders.

Three were received, one for $9,116, one for $7,743 and a third for $3,785.

The city management maintains that its own employees can do the job for around $3,700, and it has been the conflict between champions of this course and advocates of having the work done by contract which has delayed a decision on the issue for so long.

In view of the big difference between the high and low tenders, it might be wise to give the low man a test run, City Manager Dennis Young told aldermen Tuesday.

As one of the principals in "this extraordinary dispute," he would go along with the city having a crack at the job if the low tenderer was unable to do a satisfactory job, said A. H. Hugh Stephen, although he still doubted that it could be done for $3,700.

Up to that point, Ald. Stephen had been a principal champion of having the work done by private enterprise.

Manpower Impractical

"The recommendation for a total of 134 men in the department must be considered as impractical for the immediate future at least."

He said the city of Victoria with its greater concentration of commercial buildings, high density areas, warehousing, industrial and marine development, is served by 104 men, plus a civilian secretarial staff.

"It cannot be denied that Saanich is still undermanned, but it is not economically feasible to follow this recommendation to the full. Nor can I believe such a large force is necessary."

He agreed with the recommended relocation of the fire hall at Elk Lake, and said it could be considered a priority item.

"The study is similar to the number which have been undertaken in the municipality in recent years and this latest will serve the people of Saanich well if it does nothing more than provoke careful and far-sighted discussion by members of council and our senior officials."

Guide for Future

"It provides important guide lines not only for the present but for a number of years to come," the reeve said.

He suggested the committee write to the fire marshal and indicate its surprise at the recommended heavy increase in staff.

"That would be the understatement of the year," he grinned.

Saanich controller-treasurer John Tribe said it would cost the municipality approximately $7,500 for each of the additional men, plus the expenses of the recommended additional equipment.

The report further said that few municipal fire departments are named to the recommended standard, but Saanich has problems that are not common.

The municipality has an area of 40 square miles, 58,000 population, a large number of buildings of a very large area, residential areas of high value, and topography that does not lend itself to fast dependable response.

Parents Invited To Meeting

Prospective foster parents are invited to attend an information meeting sponsored by the Family and Children's Service at Spencerhouse, 1551 Cook, at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Easy to Prepare

Shortcuts for Summer Cooks

Halt the fine pie, a delight for all seasons!

Banana Cottage Cheese Pie is just such a delight. Jewelled with glazed fruit, it boasts a wealth of nourishing dairy food ingredients — eggs, cream, protein-rich cottage cheese. Its special taste appeal comes from creamy smooth banana, used in the pie mixture and sliced to make an elegant fruit topping.

This light and just-right-for-summer company dessert can be prepared in the cool of the morning, then chilled until after dinner guests arrive. In fact, it will keep well in the refrigerator for several days. So it offers a boon to the busy housewife looking for cookery shortcuts during warm-weather months.

BANANA CHEESE PIE

1 cup mixed glazed fruit, finely chopped
2 tablespoons rum
1 pound cottage cheese, sieved
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 egg yolks
1 cup light cream
3/4 cup flour
1/2 unbaked cookie crust pie shell plus enough strips for a crisscross to fasten pie shell can be used if preferred
1 banana
Lemon juice

Mix chopped fruit and rum, let stand 1 hour. Sieve cottage cheese and mix with 1/2 cup sugar, vanilla, and diced banana; let stand in refrigerator while preparing remainder of recipe. Blend together egg yolks, cream, flour and remaining 1/2 cup of sugar in a small saucepan. Cook and stir over low heat until thick and smooth; cool. Have the unbaked shell well chilled, then line with banana slices brushed with lemon juice. Fold together the 3 prepared mixtures, mixing gently but well. Turn filling into shell and top with crisscross strips. Bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees, 25 minutes. Pie may be served slightly warm, but cuts better if cooled. Makes 1 9-inch pie, 6 or 8 servings.

COOKIE PIE CRUST

2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons sugar
1/2 cup shortening
1 package (3 oz.) cream cheese
2 1/2 tablespoons cold water
Sift dry ingredients together. Cut in shortening and cream cheese until mixture is like coarse corn meal. Sprinkle with water, tossing and mixing with fork. Shape into ball. Wrap and chill until ready to use. Divide dough in half and roll one-half out to fit 9" pie plate. Reserve remaining half to cut into strips for lattice top.

Iced Ted

While Canadians have been drinking iced tea for nearly 100 years, it is possible that some people have not derived the most enjoyment from this popular summer refresher because it has not been made properly.

For foolproof iced tea: 1. Pour 1/2 a pint of freshly boiling water over 4 tea bags in a saucepan. 2. Stir and let brew 5 minutes, uncovered. 3. Pour tea into quart container and fill to capacity with cold water. 4. Stir again and strain into pitcher. Keep at room temperature until ready to serve, then pour into ice-filled glasses.

If guests arrive unexpectedly, make this summer cooler the fastest way, with instant tea. You can have a frosty glass ready in seconds; the instant powder dissolves in cold water. In addition to preparing the tea properly, give it eye as well as taste appeal. Some fun ways of dressing up this thirst quencher are:

1. Spear a watermelon ball with an ice pick or skewer and then poke a brightly colored sipper straw through the hole. Vary the watermelon with a ripe cherry, cube of pineapple, peach, grape or a fresh flower. Freeze a long-stemmed marshmallow or mint cherry in each section of the ice tray and serve in tall glass of iced tea.

Instead of ordinary sugar, use orange cubes of sugar, made by rubbing a cube over an unpeeled, slightly scraped orange and sprinkling with grated orange rind.

Freeze lemonade or orange juice, or iced tea itself, into cubes to be added to the glass. Mint leaves can be added to the surface of the cube by covering with enough water to form a thin coat of ice when frozen.

To frost a glass, dip the rim to about 1/4 inch in lemon juice, then in fine granulated sugar or confectioners' sugar. Chill for about an hour. When filling frosted glasses, use a small funnel to pour the tea into the middle of the glass.

Mint is an excellent garnish for iced tea and may be used either floating or fastened in an orange or lemon slice.

For easy relaxed hospitality, serve easy-to-make canapés with tall tinkling glasses of iced tea. You are always prepared if you keep an assortment of crisp crackers available. Give them a quick topping with something that may be found in the refrigerator or on the pantry shelf.

On fancy-shaped crackers, dab a little mayonnaise to which a dash of curry powder has been added; top each one with a shrimp and a caper or two.

Spread sardines with red currant jelly and finish with small triangles of Gruyere cheese.

Top square crackers with a canned meat paste, thin slice of cheese roll and a slice of stuffed olive.

Other toppings for various crackers could be sardines with a dash of Worcestershire sauce and lemon juice, anchovies on a spread of cream cheese or cream cheese blended with chopped chives.

B.C. Girl Makes History in RCN As First Female Surgeon Cadet

By GEOFFREY BINTCLIFFE

CAMP BORDEN, Ont. (CP) — Wendy Clay is a willowy, 23-year-old blonde, equally at home in a swimsuit or at the stops of the church organ in her home town of Terrace, B.C.

So how come she presents a somewhat warlike image this summer, charging about in military camp in battle dress and steel helmet, toting a sub-machinegun or a service rifle? For a start, she's the first female surgeon cadet in RCN history, enrolled in the Canadian Armed Forces 45-month medical undergraduate subsidization plan.

This summer she's on a 10-week "indoctrination and orientation" course, in preparation for her commissioning this September as a surgeon sub-lieutenant in the navy. Wendy is the only girl among 50 medical cadets taking the course.

This fall she starts her fourth and final year in medical school at the University of British Columbia where she also did her three years as a pre-med student.

Last October she enrolled as a surgeon cadet and when she graduates next May, she will intern at a regular hospital, which she hopes will be Vancouver General, before being posted with the rank of surgeon lieutenant to a military hospital in Canada or overseas.

Wendy hopes the posting will be to a hospital in West Germany.

Bulk of the course is spent at Camp Borden, 15 miles southwest of Barrie. The cadets also had one-week stints at Halifax, Toronto, North Bay, Ont., and Trenton, Ont., 10 miles west of Belleville.

At Halifax they made a familiarization tour of naval vessels. At Trenton they learned something of Air Transport Command and at North Bay they studied air defence operations. In Toronto they attended lectures on aviation medicine.

The course is no jaunt. It packs in plenty of studying, rigorous military training and 10 days of medical field training under simulated war conditions. But Wendy appears to thrive on it. She asks for and gets no special privileges and is expected to compete on an equal basis with the male cadets.

She certainly does this, says Flying Officer Russ Gibbons, base information officer at Camp Borden. The cadets are in two platoons and in mid-July Wendy was placed second in her platoon.

"I love the life and can't wait to get into the service proper," she said with a ready smile. "The companionship is tremendous."

When she is commissioned, Wendy will be the only woman doctor in the regular forces and the first woman naval physician to come up through cadetship, FO Gibbons said.

Wendy must spend three years in the navy but this gives her no qualms. She plans to make the navy her career.

Her mother and father, Lawrence William Clay, a real estate and insurance salesman in Terrace, wholeheartedly support her in this. None of her relatives is a doctor or in the services.

As a cadet she receives an allowance of $129 a month. Her tuition fees are paid for by the subsidization plan and she receives a uniform allowance and $75 a year for text books.

When she is commissioned, her surgeon sub-lieutenant's pay will be $240 a month after deductions. Requirements for enrolment in the plan are a "satisfactory" standing as a student and the approval of a selection board which is looking for leadership qualities and good officer potential.

Wendy recommends it to other medical students. "The government subsidization is generous. Your practice is established with your patients waiting and your equipment provided when you finish internship."

"And I like the concept of preventive medicine emphasized by the services where the population is basically healthy and the aim is to keep it that way."

Finding her a uniform presented the navy with a minor problem. That has been solved temporarily with a compromise. She turns out in a naval nurse's uniform and a Wren officer's three-cornered hat.

Cardinal Cloak Tops Elegant Lace Gown

A pretty summer wedding was solemnized when Silvia Laine Jones, only daughter of Lt.-Col. and Mrs. R. H. Jones of Camp Borden, Ont., formerly of Victoria, exchanged vows with Const. Robert Wayne Hunt, RCMP, only son of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Hunt of Winnipeg, Man., in St. Martin's-in-the-Field Church.

The bride chose a gown of alencon lace cut on empire lines and worn with a silk organza cardinal cloak, trimmed with lace. Her four-tiered French net veil misted from a tiara of pearls and for jewelry she wore an engraved gold locket, the gift of the groom.

She carried a crescent bouquet of white gladioli and Demeter roses which matched the scarlet uniforms of the groom and his attendants.

Matron of honor, Mrs. J. A. Swanson, Duncan and bridesmaids, Mrs. R. C. Edwards and Mrs. R. Grant, were in short empire styled dresses of forget-me-not blue with toning headpieces of net and dainty daisies which matched their daisy bouquets.

Master Richard Davis, the bride's godson was ringbearer in a white satin suit. He carried a lace pillow on which were placed the rings for the double ring ceremony.

Const. J. A. Swanson, Duncan, was best man and Const. H. P. Castello, Chemainus and Const. E. G. Bohl, Duncan, were ushers.

Mr. William S. Jones proposed the bridal toast to his niece at the reception held at the Carlton Club. The magnificent wedding cake, fashioned in the shape of a cathedral and topped with bride and groom, was made by Mrs. J. Boulderson of Chemainus.

Smart Wall Trim

A small amount of space can be made just as attractive as a large-size room. This trim, compact eating counter was beautified by a collection of framed pictures and an old hanging lamp. The recedes, framed and matted in an assortment of colors and sizes, given up the windowless wall. The high ladder-back chairs add style, yet take little space. The eating counter itself is a simple shelf braced with wrought-iron supports. The shelf is topped with white laminated plastic — no need to worry about spills or staining. —(Better Homes and Gardens)

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: When I married my husband 15 years ago, I thought he was a social drinker. We were engaged for two years and I never once saw him drinking to excess during that time.

Shortly after our marriage I learned my husband had to have "just one drink" before attending a social gathering. He also needed "just one drink" before making a phone call to his brother or his boss.

Soon it became "just two," then "just three" — then four. When he began to lose whole weekends I knew he was in deep trouble.

Eventually we lost our home, our credit and our friends. It became fairly obvious that he did all the drinking and I was having all the hangovers. I agonized over the bum checks and the bouts with the police. I withdrew from life, ashamed to face the neighbors.

I threatened, I screamed, I cried — I begged him to stop drinking. He lost 11 jobs in two years. But his drinking continued.

After some serious soul-searching, I came to the conclusion that I had become a partner in his alcoholism by covering up for him and suffering the consequences of his drinking. In my self-pity, I had neglected myself and our four children.

I went back to my church, joined a reading club, became active in community activities, concentrated on the children and told my husband to get help or go down the drain — by himself.

Since I stopped trying to change him and instead decided to change myself I have been 100 per cent happier. The children are more loving and helpful. I no longer cry for the things I lost. I'm now thankful for the things I have.

It's difficult to watch my husband walk through the door, unsteady from drinking, but I say nothing because I know he must suffer from his feelings of weakness and inadequacy. I pity him now. Instead of hating him as I once did.

I know the hell of living with an alcoholic, but I know, too, that half of that hell is self-inflicted. There is help for alcoholism but unless the drunk wants to accept it, it is useless to nag him. I hope that one day he WILL seek help but until then I'm going to hold up my head and enjoy life. —FORMER PARTNER IN CRIME.

Dear Former Partner: Yours is one of the most eloquent and constructive letters I've ever received on this subject. I'm deeply grateful to you.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a waitress in a cafe, age 18. While I'm no Doris Day I don't look like Lassie, either.

For some mysterious reason I seem to attract nothing but married men and liars. Most of the men I go out with are the ones who come to the cafe to eat. When a man asks if he can take me out after work I make it a rule to ask if he is married. The answer is always "No."

After a few dates I find out that he led to me. The last fake had four kids. Why do I keep picking lemons? —ANGEL PUSS

Dear Angel: Because you are picking in a lemon grove. Peaches don't grow there. The best contacts are made through friends and social, political or church groups. You may not realize it, but you're being picked up, Girl.

Grandmother's Ring For 'Something Old'

A honeymoon touring Oregon and California followed the recent ceremony in First Baptist Church uniting in marriage Velma Sharon Ralph and Mr. Gerald Wayne Plewes.

Rev. John A. Watson assisted by Dr. W. C. Smalley officiated at the double-ring wedding for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Ralph, 3854 Cumberland Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Plewes, 10018 Fifth Street, Sidney.

Organist was Mr. John Tunstall. Soloist was Mrs. E. R. Murphy who sang the Wedding Prayer at the end of candlelight ceremony and The Lord's Prayer during signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was radiant in a floor-length gown of white ligada styled with a re-embroidered lace bodice and trumpet sleeves. An A-line style skirt fell from the empire waistline and was enhanced by a detachable, illusion net veil misted to her waist from a cluster of white flowers and net. For "something old" she wore her great-grandmother's ring and her only other jewelry was a cultured pearl necklace and earring set, gift of the groom. She carried a crescent bouquet of white roses and feathered carnations.

The bride's senior attendants, Mrs. J. A. McDonald of Richmond, B.C., matron of honor, and Miss Barbara Shorthouse, Vancouver, bridesmaid, were gownned alike in floor-length A-line dresses of sea foam crystal-line with detachable trains. The junior bridesmaid, Miss Lynne Ralph, bride's sister, and flower girl, Miss Janice McKinnon, were in bouffant skirted gowns of crystalline in matching sea foam shade. The attendants all wore net picture hats in tone and pearl necklaces, gifts of the bride. They carried white carnations tipped with turquoise.

Mr. Harvey Plewes was best man for his brother and Regan Wong was ring bearer.

Ushering were Mr. Bryan Ralph, bride's brother; Mr. Rodney Coward and Mr. Ian McKinnon.

Mr. Donald F. McKinnon proposed the toast to his niece at the reception which followed in the Old England Inn. Mr. grandmothers' ring and her only other jewelry was a cultured

For travelling the new Mrs. Plewes chose a three-piece ensemble of white wool boucle. She wore a salmon flowered hat and black patent accessories.

The newlyweds are now making their home in the Lord Nelson Apartments on Belmont Avenue.

Miss Mona Morrow, bride's great aunt, came from Winnipeg for the wedding. Other out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Lane and David, Mr. and Mrs. G. Shorthouse and family, all of Vancouver; Mrs. H. Nicholls and Mr. and Mrs. H. Plewes, all of Burnaby; Mr. and Mrs. John A. McDonald, Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. D. Price, Ladner; Mr. and Mrs. K. Wright, Washington; Mr. and Mrs. G. Nelson, Seattle.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Miss Sharon Ball entertained members of her wedding party at a dinner in the Lugin Place home of her parents. Stirling silver bracelets were presented to Mrs. M. Webb, Mrs. R. Anderson, who will be matrons of honor at Miss Ball's marriage on Aug. 6, Miss Sharon Lord who will be maid-of-honor and Miss Marilyn Ball, bridesmaid. Mr. Bill Glover, groom-elect, presented best man, Mr. Dave Ferris and ushers, Mr. M. Webb, Mr. K. Kendall and Mr. B. Ball with engraved peuter mugs.

Surprise Shower

A bridal shower was held for Miss Pat Padden recently. The shower was held at the home of Miss Pearl Proctor and was given by Miss Nancy Grossman. The bride-elect was presented a corsage of white carnations while her mother, Mrs. B. Padden, received a peppermint carnation corsage. Miss Sue Law attended for her mother, Mrs. J. Law. The shower gifts were presented to Miss Padden in a decorated clothes basket. Tea was served and games were played. Guests, and co-workers from the Consumer Taxation Branch, were the Misses Pearl Proctor, Laverne Christensen, Jeanne Renfrew, Linda Gray, Brenda Bescott, Heidi Schmidt, Ruth King, Sarah Banfield, Kay Chamberlain, Ireta Thorpe, Mrs. J. Caley, Mrs. M. Coppinger. Unable to attend were the Misses Rosemary Ossellon, Shirley Kobinsky, Fran Burdge, Doreen Munro and Mrs. C. Jayne.

Cup and Saucer Shower

Miss M. Doupe and Mrs. B. Litchfield were joint hostesses at a cup and saucer shower held in honor of bride-elect, Miss Ann Barker. Pink roses in a miniature cup and saucer were presented to Miss Barker while her mother, Mrs. W. Barker and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. M. Hallam received carnations in corsage. A large pink and white cup and saucer held gifts. Guests were Mrs. E. Schaefer, Mrs. E. Lohr, Mrs. J. Lohr, Mrs. R. Lohr, Mrs. G. Parker, Mrs. E. Stone, Mrs. R. Bolton, Mrs. M. Walper, and the Misses Joyann Guiguet, Jean Barker, Nerline and Leta Lohr.

Dessert Party

A dessert party was held at the Falkland Road home of Mrs. Hugh Molyneux in honor of Miss Marianne Johns. The guest of honor received a gift and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Harold Robinson presided at the tea table and the hostess was assisted by Miss Brownwyn Taylor and Miss Wendy Molyneux. Guests were the bride's grandmother, Mrs. S. Baxthall, Mrs. W. Butler, Vancouver, Mrs. T. H. Johns, Mrs. D. Taylor, Mrs. A. Higgs, Mrs. W. Johns, Mrs. R. C. Newby, Mrs. H. Gilliland, Mrs. D. Band Music Noisier

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A press release from the national association of music merchants reports that rock 'n' roll bands will soon be able to double, triple or maybe even quadruple their noise levels.

This happy situation has been made possible by the development of some new instruments, including the "varitone," the "pianotron" and the "tubon."

The varitone is an electronic saxophone, the pianotron is an electronic piano and the tubon appears to be a combination accordion and vacuum cleaner.

Chicago Wedding Of Interest Here

The marriage of Linda Bernice Whitney and Dr. William E. Martin took place recently in Moody Church, Chicago, Ill.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan C. Whitney of Camp Hill, Penn. and the groom is the son of Mrs. Martin, Victor Street, Victoria and the late Mr. Edward S. Martin.

The bride wore an empire style sheath of candlelight silk linen with detachable train which she had made herself. The bride and illusion veil featured medallion scalloped lace. She carried a white Bible topped with white roses.

Matron of honor, Mrs. John R. Werner of Blue Island, Ill. and the groom's sister, Miss Elizabeth Martin, Victoria, were in floor-length sheaths of powder blue linen with bodice trim of blue embroidered ribbon.

Dr. John R. Werner was best man and Rev. R. O. Kanton, the groom's attendant.

A reception followed in the Church Fellowship Hall.

Among out of town guests was the groom's mother, Mrs. E. S. Martin.

Dr. and Mrs. Martin are now residing in Toronto where Dr. Martin is resident in the neurology department and his wife is a clinical instructor in the School of Nursing, Toronto General Hospital.

Ex-'Met' Opera Stars Leading Voice Workshop

The Northwest region of the National Association of Teachers of Singing will forsake the ivy-clad colleges of the United States this year for the Empress Hotel's Georgian Lounge.

Teachers of singing, choir conductors, singers and accompanists will converge for a voice and choral workshop Aug. 14 to 19.

Two of the principals in the voice department will be Mario and Ruth Miller Chamlee of Hollywood.

MET STARS

Both have starred in productions at the Metropolitan Opera, New York.

Mario Chamlee made his debut in Tosca in 1922 with Geraldine Farrar and Antonio Scott.

Following this he appeared in most of the Metropolitan's repertoire, including La Boheme, La Traviata, Madame Butterfly and Rigoletto.

PARIS STUDY

Ruth Miller Chamlee left the United States to study in Paris when she was 17. Her teachers included the celebrated Sbriglia.

During workshop sessions, Henry Holt, assistant conductor for the Seattle Opera Association, will discuss the case for and against opera in English.

Lancashire to Portland

Police 'Guinea Pig' On Exchange Visit

A self-styled guinea pig arrived in Victoria Tuesday for an informal look at the city's police system.

Touring the police station and visiting the courts was Chief Inspector John Kennard of the Lancashire (England) Constabulary.

He is the first English policeman to come to North America on an exchange basis.

He is spending six months in Multnomah County, Portland, studying police methods there, while an American lieutenant is doing the same in England.

The swap was conceived last year when a member of the Multnomah force discussed the idea. He knew Col. T. E. St. Johnston of the Lancashire force, and the idea became a reality.

Chief Inspector Kennard is trying to see as many aspects of police work as possible, hence his visit to Victoria.

He feels the exchange of policemen could become a regular happening and says that, as the first, he is "basically a guinea pig."

The visitor was cool against the heat of the day, dressed in white open-necked shirt and epaulettes — the Lancashire force's summer uniform for officers.

His trip ends Sept. 30. Then he will return to his job in organization and planning with some new thinking.

"Revolutions in police work are few and far between," he said.

"This visit has made me reflect on some of the things we are doing at home — whether we are doing them right or not."

He was interested in the use of computers by American forces, and says the Americans are far ahead of England in this field.

"Our people are looking at them," he said. "If we get them, we will have the advantage that the small problems will be solved."

Victoria's July Not Hot

While in many parts of Canada, residents in July were prostrated by excessive heat, Victoria luxuriated in a reasonable mean temperature of 57.7 degrees.

For those who like it hotter, there's the consolation that these readings are taken at Gonzales Heights and are usually a good 10 degrees cooler than the temperature in town.

Recorded light, on July 19 and 21, were 72.8. This was 9.1 degrees below normal but means there were places in town where the mercury reached 82.8. The coldest it got was 48.6, just 4 above normal.

With rainfall of 1.38 inches, 252 per cent of normal, and sunshine measured at 232.1 hours, only 87 per cent of normal, residents did not need to water their gardens nearly so often as usual.

And there was less wind to dry up the land's moisture. Boaters had no winds of gale force to contend with. Strongest hourly speed was 28 miles an hour from the southwest on July 28. Gusts reached 36 and 43.

August is starting out with higher temperatures than normal, and they may continue.

Carpenter Crisis Today

About 700 southern Vancouver Island carpenters will be locked out of their jobs at 4:30 p.m. today on the issue of a 37½-hour work week.

"We're still willing to discuss an agreement with the carpenters," R. K. Gervin, spokesman for the contractors, said Tuesday night from Vancouver.

John Schibbl, president of Local 1598 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters in Victoria, said the contractors would sit down and talk only if the question of hours was dropped.

WHAT KIND?
"They make this condition before they will even sit down," he said. "What kind of negotiation is that?"

Mr. Gervin said the contractors could not discuss a shorter work week now. "It is not practical," he said. "The time to talk about that is in 1969, when all the building trades agreements expire. You can't have workers leaving the same jobs at different times."

Both men said they did not expect any developments before the lockouts begin at 4:30 p.m. today.

SCHOOLS HIT
About 5,000 carpenters and $1,500,000,000 worth of construction in B.C. are involved.

In the Greater Victoria area, almost all construction will cease, with the exception of a few apartment buildings. Work at the University of Victoria and at elementary, senior and junior high schools will come to a halt.

Carpenters working on Dunsmuir junior high school in Colwood walked off the job at noon Monday. No other jobs have been affected, Mr. Schibbl said Tuesday night.

SEVEN SIGN
The carpenters now work a 40-hour week. About seven independent contractors signed agreements embodying the 37½-hour week. Work on their jobs will continue, Mr. Schibbl said.

Mr. Gervin is labor relations officer for Associated Construction Association of B.C., an organization of 22 B.C. contractors formed in June as a negotiating body.

Police Procedure

New U.S. Court Rulings Well-Known in Canada

By TED PULFORD

Recent U.S. Supreme Court rulings respecting the rights of an accused person—banned as an impediment to police in that country—are similar to safeguards which have long protected a Canadian who runs afoul of the law.

Discussing the situation which currently exists in British Columbia, a senior provincial government lawyer explained Tuesday that the principles outlined in the new U.S. rulings—particularly the one which stipulates that an accused must be advised of his right to remain silent—are routinely followed by B.C.'s police forces.

The other U.S. Supreme Court decision, which insists that a person accused of an offence have his lawyer nearby, is a right available to an accused in this country if he wishes to exercise it.

TWO CALLS

"Suppose a man is arrested on a criminal charge," the lawyer said. "He is allowed to make two phone calls: one to his lawyer, the other to his family. He may thus avail himself of legal protection."

Protecting the rights of an indigent defendant charged in British Columbia with a criminal offence, is one of the most active legal aid systems to be found in Canada.

If he wants legal advice from a competent lawyer, he gets it.

SAFEGUARDS

The suggestion is often made, however, that by the time a person is able to see his lawyer, a cast-iron case has been built against him by police. Are there other safeguards?

The government lawyer pointed out that statements elicited from the accused by police have little value in Canadian courts unless it is demonstrated that the person has received a statutory warning.

This means that the person making the statement must first be warned in words to this effect: "You do not have to say anything. You have nothing to fear from any threats, nor any reason to hope as the result of any promises made to you. Anything you do say, however, may be taken down in writing and used as evidence against you."

CORROBORATION

One of the province's senior police officers enlarged upon the question of statements and confessions, and their comparative worth in Canada and the United States.

The new U.S. rulings, he said, "are simply bringing American law enforcement officers face to face with a situation that we in this country have encountered for years—and have overcome reasonably well."

"No matter how it is obtained, a confession that is not corroborated by physical evidence will not be tolerated for a moment by one of our courts."

United States courts, it was pointed out, have until now relied heavily upon confessions by accused persons, and the recent Supreme Court rulings constitute a way of protecting them from overzealous enforcement agencies.

"Our American colleagues have asked us how we ever get any convictions at all," the police officer said. "We point out that our men concentrate on"

Gas Find Pays $11 Per Week

It's Good for Britain But Won't Buy Barn

LONDON (AP) — What may be Britain's biggest natural gas strike promises riches for a lot of people — but not for the woman farmer who owns the land.

Ruth Sandiman, 53, is entitled to only $11.20 a week rent for the field where the drill was sunk. She has no claim to the mineral rights below.

"So," Miss Sandiman said philosophically, "all I'll get is a very small rent for my field. I won't get enough to buy myself a new barn, and I need a good barn. But still, it's good for Britain and that's something, isn't it?"

WILDOAT ROLE

The gas bonanza was a wildcat venture by Home Oil of Canada on her lonely farm near the Yorkshire hamlet of Lockton.

"This is a private matter between the company and Miss Sandiman," said a spokesman for the oil company, "but we are taking another look at the situation with a view to renegotiations."

The Petroleum Production Act of 1934 nationalized all the subsoil hydrocarbons in Britain, and now they belong to the Crown, not the landowner.

PRICE NEGOTIATED

The gas industry is nationalized in Britain, too, but the Canadian company will be able to sell its share of the find to the Gas Council at a negotiated price.

The new gas well has an estimated potential of 150,000,000 cubic feet a day—enough to meet the heating and cooking demands of a city of 150,000.

When the men from Canada called on Miss Sandiman at her farm in January, she thought at first they were selling her house for stoves. She used electricity. She agreed to rent them land for drilling.

Since, then, she said, her 50 cows and 150 sheep have hardly had a night's sleep.

"When the drillers ignite the gas it lights up the sky," she explained.

Protest Costly

NOTTINGHAM, England (Reuters) — Factory worker Stanley King Monday was put on a year's probation and ordered to pay $88.55 for windows he broke in the police station here with a hammer. King was quoted as telling police: "Too many thieves are getting away with stealing. I thought I might just as well register my protest."

Trouble Hits Ship

A malfunction in a diesel generator unit aboard the weather ship Vancouver has set the commissioning program back one month.

A transport department spokesman said Tuesday a fault was found in the shaft of a generator. It is being repaired and the manufacturer will carry out a thorough check on similar equipment, he said.

The ship is still in the hands of Burrard Dry Dock Co., the builders, who have turned the work over to Yarrows Ltd.

Originally trials were to have begun early in August but now they will be set back until September.

The Coast Guard plans to hold open house aboard the vessel in late September to give the public a look at the ship.

She was to have taken her place on weather station Papa in October but December is a likelier date.

Reserves Astonish Britons

LONDON (Reuters) — There were mild jeers of disbelief in the stock exchange Tuesday when the government announced that Britain's reserves dropped only £25,000,000 ($75,000,000) last month during a new economic crisis.

London financial editors also greeted the announcement with some skepticism.

The Evening Standard said the treasury had staggered the financial quarters in what looked like the understatement of the year.

The Evening News said it was believed to be the first time that disbelief was expressed so openly in the stock exchange.

The announcement gave a mild boost to the pound on the foreign exchange.

The sterling rate against the U.S. dollar immediately rose three points to $2.7845 when the treasury announced that the gold and convertible currency reserves stood at £1,145,000,000 ($3,435,000,000).

This was a smaller fall than expected.

Link With World

Telephone Bells Ring Today In Arctic Circle

By JANE BECKER

INUUVIK, N.W.T. (CP) — Instant communication with southern Canada and the rest of the world extends into the western Arctic today with the opening of the final link of the Mackenzie overland telephone line.

Prime Minister Pearson, in Ottawa, is to speak to Commissioner B. G. Sivert of the Northwest Territories on the line's first call at opening ceremonies here.

Inuvik is 1,200 miles north of Edmonton and about 130 miles north of the Arctic Circle, some 50 miles from the Arctic Ocean.

RELY ON RADIO

Until now communication with the South from Inuvik and other communities north of Norman Wells has been by radio teletype, although the department of transport has had radio telephone towers linking DEW Line stations along the northern coast.

Radio telephone service has also connected Cambridge Bay, 800 miles east, on Victoria Island, with telephone and telegraph lines in the South. But only a government radio tower, unreliable except in certain weather conditions and available only to some government employees, provided any direct telephone link with major centres.

OTHER USES
Now, Mackenzie River communities will have direct telephone service to anywhere in the world. The new line will also be used for teletype and telex transmission and for transmitting photographs, weather maps and other pictorial material.

The completion of the 300-mile line from Norman Wells to Inuvik is the last stage in Canadian National Telecommunications' three-year project of building a land telephone line from Hay River, 50 miles north of the Alberta border, to the Arctic Ocean.

Radio telephone links to Tuktoyaktuk, Aldavik, Fort McPherson and Arctic Red River connect these communities to the service.

The line consists of about 1,000 miles of wire strung along 55,000 tripod poles along a 900-mile route which follows the Mackenzie for almost its entire length. CNT says it probably will be the last major pole telephone line to be built in Canada.

The line was completed to Fort Simpson, 200 miles northwest of Hay River, in 1964 and was extended to Norman Wells last year.

About 60 official guests are being flown to Inuvik for opening ceremonies. On hand as well will be the Commons northern affairs committee, headed by Hubert Badaroi of Fort William, Ont., which is touring the north.

Garden Notes

Tea Leaves Useful

By M. V. CHESNUT

Once upon a time, when I was all dewy-eyed and innocent, I was "dud" very neatly by a gawling neighbor. This man was a keen gardener with a garden of astounding fertility where everything grew bigger, stronger, earlier and more disease-resistant than in my humble plot with its so-so soil.

When I asked him why his backyard, only a few yards from mine, should be so much more productive, he told me, with a perfectly straight face, that the improvement was brought about by digging in a very special soil-conditioning material imported from Ceylon at a cost of $1.25 per pound!

When I remarked that this was too rich for my blood, he offered to give me a sample of this fabulous soil conditioner. Going into the house, he brought out the family teapot, drained it, dumped the used tea leaves into a paper pie plate and handed it to me without a word. This was the expensive soil builder from Ceylon—ordinary tea leaves.

Every year during the growing season I get quite a few letters from readers asking whether tea leaves are of any value in the garden. They are useful, but hardly more than any other kind of leaves, and my green-thumbed neighbor certainly didn't rely entirely on the family teapot; he dug in every kind of organic material he could get his hands on.

Besides digging them in to add humus to the soil, tea leaves can be dried off and spread as a mulch on the soil surface around your plants, where they are just as effective as buckwheat hulls or peat moss, conserving soil moisture and keeping down weeds.

Your own household will never supply tea leaves in practicable quantities for mulching, though; this use is for those who can tap the resources of a hotel or restaurant.

Used tea bags are less useful, as they tend to dry into a hard mass, but you can bury two or three of them, soggy wet, down under each plant as you set it out, thereby improving the moisture-holding capacity of the soil, or they can be rotted down in the compost heap.

Because of their tannic acid content, tea leaves have an acid reaction and are especially useful in the soil or as a surface mulch around the acid-loving azaleas, rhododendrons, hollies and blue hydrangeas. By the same token, they shouldn't be used around the lime-loving carnations, pinks, sweet williams and pink or red hydrangeas.

Quite a few women make it their practice to fill up the teapot with water at the end of a meal and make the rounds of their houseplants, giving each one a drink of very weak cold tea. It seems to have some beneficial effect, and I think this again is probably due to its slight acid reaction, for there is little or no food value for plants in tea dregs.

Houseplants need something acidic occasionally, for constant watering with tap water tends to build an accumulation of lime and other minerals in the soil, and a touch of acid helps counteract this.

Most garden authorities view with suspicion the use of coffee grounds in the garden because of their oil content, but I am not too sure they are right.

All winter long we dump our coffee grounds in a flower bed just outside the back door, and over the years the soil texture and fertility of this bed has improved out of all recognition.

Every spring the surface accumulation of weathered coffee grounds is dug in, and right now that bed is filled with a particularly husky-looking batch of gladioli, as fine as I have ever grown.

It could be that the winter weathering leaches out the harmful elements from the coffee. It is possible, too, that the garden books are wrong about injurious oils in coffee grounds. After all, coffee beans are just seeds, and as a general rule, anything that comes out of the soil is unharmed to put back in it.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Divorce Surprises Star

LONDON (NANA)—Richard Harris told me he was the most surprised man in the world when his wife decided to divorce him. He might acquiesce, but from what I know of him he will never give up fighting to win Elizabeth back and to be accepted by his three children again.

Everyone in Rome, of any elegance, wears her hair very thick and long. And eight-year-old Lisa Todd is completely in the fashion with longer locks than mama Elizabeth Taylor.

Claudia Cardinale has to be the most wanted woman in the world. "I receive between 700 and 800 letters a month from strangers asking me to marry them," she writes from Hollywood where she is co-starring with Tony Curtis in Don't Make Waves. The letters apparently make good reading because Claudia is putting the most interesting into a book titled, Dear Claudia.

Tony Quinn will be selling his big home on the outskirts of Rome to live more in the center of town. His oldest son, three-year-old Frank, will be going to kindergarten in the fall, and this is the reason for the move.

Universal would buy War and Peace from the Russians if they would give permission to cut the already eight-hour film. They still have to shoot the burning of Moscow. Negotiations are going on as a result of Universal executives Milt Backmill and Dave Golding's flight to Moscow. It would be interesting to compare the Russian version with King Vidor's old film with Audrey Hepburn, Mel Ferrer, and Henry Fonda, made in Rome nearly 10 years ago.

When Gregory Peck, producer of the film, The Bells of Hell Go Ting-a-ling-a-ling, advertised in Switzerland for a young man to drive a truck over a cliff, more than 150 young Swiss-suiciders applied for the dangerous job. One applicant said he was prepared to take the risk—for $1,500—because his wife had just left him!

Clint Walker, receiving $100,000 for his role in The Dirty Dozen, says he did not get much more than that in all the seven years he toiled in Cheyenne. "We worked six days a week, went from one set up to another. I lost track of what I was doing." Divorced recently, Clint seems to know what he is doing now in the romance department with Pauline Bernas. "I'm said they will wed at the earliest opportunity. Clint, 38, has a daughter in her late teens from his first marriage.

"The fallacy of living in Switzerland," said Christopher Lee at The White Elephant, "is that they don't want you to earn money in Switzerland. But if you want to be a Swiss resident, you must guarantee to live there at least six months of the year." Lee, who is so good as Dracula, Frankenstein, Rasputin and Fu Manchu, was attempting to live in Switzerland because he likes the scenery there. "They ordered my wife and I to leave the country after I had rented a house there, sold everything in England. Switzerland is a police state. I had planned to live there to give my daughter an international education, not as a tax evasion. But there are more laws and less justice in Switzerland than in any other country in the world. The cradle of democracy, my eye."

STAN DELAPLANE

Visits Chinatown

By STAN DELAPLANE

SAN FRANCISCO — It is summer tourist season now in San Francisco's Chinatown. Warm golden sun drifting down a narrow alley. The chop-chop of soft iron knives mincing green vegetables in a Chinese restaurant.

The out-of-town visitors wander in and out of shops. (All with the magic's nest of 50-cent-to-a-dollar gimcracks from Hong Kong, Taiwan and Japan.) Cameras click. Aloha shirts flap in the Bay breeze.

Herb shops will powder a surging sea-horse for you. Cooked, leathery ducks swing above a butcher's block. You can hear sing-song Cantonese that visiting Chinese can scarcely understand. It came over in the Gold Rush. And the Chinatown name for San Francisco is still "Gold Hill."

The great Chinese funerals used to parade through here. Two-hour processions led by a blaring brass band.

There were mourners on foot. Supported by one or two helpers according to how closely they were related.

A life-size photograph of the deceased was mounted on a wheeled truck.

Spirit money flew in the street. It is punched with many holes. Following evil spirits must squirm through each hole. An impossible task.

Chiefs of police and fire chiefs and judges rode in these parades honoring powerful merchants. And as they passed his place of business—(usually dingy, hole-in-the-wall quarters, for rich men are not ostentatious)—they halted. The spirit could see that business was being attended to and rest in peace.

I had lunch at the Golden Pavilion above Grant Avenue; originally, it was Dupont Street. When Chinatown is speaking Chinese, they call it "Dupont."

The Golden Pavilion is one of the elegant restaurants, more anxious about Chinese customer opinion than the tourists. It is run by retired U.S. Army Colonel George Chow.

He said: "Chinese are very provincial. So though we serve some Peking or Szechuan food, our main dishes are Cantonese because Cantonese are our customers. They feel that the best food is always from Canton."

Much of the Chinese food is chopped. Colonel Chow did a time-and-motion study and bought the kitchen staff a chopping machine.

"The machine can do in five minutes what the whole staff does in an hour," he said. The machine sits there. New and unused.

"They say it tastes better if it is chopped by hand. Not only that," said Colonel Chow. "They insist on using a soft, iron knife that has to be sharpened all the time. Steel is no good for them."

There are few changes in Chinese recipes. The Chinese feel that their cooking has been brought to perfection over hundreds of years. Several dishes are named because they were favorites of an Empress who died 1,000 years ago.

Wind-blown duck must hang in a south breeze. The duck is blown up like a football — it expands the skin so that the painted marinade of honey, peanut oil and herbs is better absorbed. But the south wind is a must.

Certain foods do certain things for you. Diet is important.

A very modern physician, Dr. Colin Dong, slim down impossibly fat people using Chinese diet principles. With diet, he reverses age and turns creaking men into tigers.

"What you put into you is what you are," Dr. Dong told me once. (Tiger, tiger, burning bright!)

"Chinatown, my Chinatown." The tourist parade and the cars backed up for blocks.

The doorway where Jack Manton of the police Chinatown detail dug bullets for me out of a wall, the toog man was a poor marksman and the Hip Sing man ducked.

The rooftops that curve — devils slide down them and go whooshing off into space. The summer sun and the smell of

More Spelling Lunacy

By SYDNEY HARRIS

Speaking of Bernard Shaw's vain efforts to reform that grotesque and illogical thing known as English spelling, as I was a few days ago, reminded me of his ironic spelling of the word "fish."

Shaw pointed out that "fish" could easily be spelled "ghoi" in English. The "gh" combination is pronounced "f" in words like rough; the vowel "oi" is pronounced like a short "i" in women; and the "t" combination is pronounced like "sh" in the word nation.

In discussing the lunacy of English spelling, I also mentioned the Simplified Spelling Society, which labored for many years to bring order out of chaos. Although the group has apparently died out, some of their splendid limericks still survive, and herewith are a few more of their choice items: A king, on assuming his reign, Exclaimed with a feeling of peign:

"No I'm legally heir No one here seems to celer That I haven't been born with a bregn."

Bill learned to play tunes on a comb And became such a nuisance at homeb.

That Ma spanked him and said "Shall I put you to bald?" And he cheerfully answered her, "Nomb."

A merchant addressing a debtor, Remarked in the course of his letter

"That he chose to suppose A man knew what he owe; And the sooner he pays it, the better!"

A young lady crossing the ocean Grew ill from the ship's dizzy mocean.

She called with a sigh And a tear in her eigh, For the doctor to give her a pocean.

And now our brief lesson is through—I trust you'll agree it was trowth;

For it's chiefly designed To impress on your mind What wonders our spelling can dough!

English, indeed, is perhaps the only civilized language in the world in which even reasonably educated persons have spelling difficulties—in fact, some fine writers are perversely proud of their inability to spell correctly. And it is true that, to our old-fashioned eyes, nothing looks uglier than English as it kuld be speld.

School Proposed To Correct Drivel

A lot of drivel is being given to tourists by unqualified people, and a school or workshop should be set up to correct the situation, members of the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee were told Tuesday.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood, suggested a two-week course in the history of the district and other local lore. The tourist bureau will be alerted.

As if operators of the Gorge paddle wheelers didn't have enough to contend with from log booms and various floating debris, they now have to look out for children too.

An operator of the tourist boats complained to Saanich police Tuesday that children in the area of the Gorge bridge are swimming out to meet the passing paddle wheelers.

A resident of the area also asked that police put a stop to the practice before a child is drowned.

Exactly half of the events originally scheduled for Centennial Square this week go on as planned.

Holiday Bashes are, apparently, to be discontinued, so the one billed for Thursday evening falls by the wayside. There is no official statement.

A repeat performance by the Red Lionettes Drum Corps and the Irvin Lang Trio goes on at 8 p.m. Friday.

Bridge Results

Winners of the Monday Masters duplicate bridge game held Monday were: 1. Joan Strick and Tony Marsh, 2. Mildred and Margaret Kirby, 3. Elizabeth Warren and Bud Waddington, 4. Louise Duncan and Paul Smith.

NANAIMO — RCMP have arrested a juvenile in connection with the bludgeoning slaying of an 82-year-old Chase River woman.

The suspect was taken into custody at 8:45 p.m. Tuesday at Chase River. He will appear in Nanaimo court this morning.

Elma Hartman's savings were tied around her neck when a brutal robber entered her home last week.

And the money was still there when a neighbor found her lying dead, in a pool of her own blood, on the kitchen floor of her 13th Street home. Police speculate the robber must have killed the 82-year-old recluse and then panicked and fled.

He didn't take $7,240 in a plastic bag tied around the dead woman's neck.

A tracking dog turned up the death weapon, a piece of firewood from Mrs. Hartman's home.

The weapon was found cached and covered in a cavity under a big rock, across the road from Mrs. Hartman's home.

"The plastic bag contained $7,240 in $20, $50 and $100 bills," an officer said.

He said 10 $20 U.S. gold coins, one dated 1859, three $10 U.S. gold coins, and three

Gorge Tides Measured

A 50-foot stretch of the Gorge waterway off Arm Street is being tested for tide speed.

The Canadian Hydrographic Service was to have completed the survey Tuesday night.

The tide speed is gauged by throwing weighted sticks into the current and timing them over a 50-foot course.

The section of water off Arm Street was chosen because there is little boiling or eddying.

Leigh receives pointers from father Glen Duncan as she starts day's work

Co-ed 'Punk' Performs Man-Sized Logging Job

By ANGES FLETT

NANAIMO — Leigh Duncan is probably the only pretty co-ed whistle punk in the province or in the whole of Canada for that matter.

UBC students are engaged in varied jobs throughout the province during their summer recess, but the job of whistle punk, for a girl student is one of the most unusual.

Leigh will be entering third year at UBC this fall. For the past two summers she has carried on the job of whistle punk very successfully. There is only one trouble with the job, it has no future. The job of whistle punk may soon be extinct!

The whistle punk is being replaced by the talkie-tooter, an electronic device worn on the belt of the chokerman. When a log is ready to be yarded in, after the choker is set, the chokerman just presses the talkie-tooter. It sends an electronic signal to the receiving set on the donkey and sounds a whistle.

The whistle-punk, used throughout the last half-century of logging in B.C., was usually a young fellow, just learning the art of logging. He was referred to as a punk, and all he did was blow a whistle, hence the name whistle-punk.

However the job is not that easy. It demands care and attention as the lives of the chokemen and others in the woods often depends on the correct signal by the whistle punk. Whether the mainline was to be pulled in, or the haulback to go out... or stop all operations depended on the correct number of whistles.

The actual whistle is a little device... fastened to a half-mile or so of line. The end of the line is connected to a small battery box on the donkey.

When the whistle device is pressed by the whistle punk, it sends a signal through the battery box which then blows a whistle high atop the donkey.

Leigh also has done some logs scaling and still does so when it is needed. But she enjoys the job of whistle punk especially the pay she says.

Now that the IWA strike settlement has given male and female equal pay in the logging industry she makes top money for any female worker — about $20 a day!

No wonder she likes the job. Leigh says for that pay she'll even put up with being the only female in the woods surrounded by rough and ready loggers.

She said the loggers don't seem to mind having a girl hanging around all day, although they admitted it did crimp their style of conversation a little!

She also complains this year about having to work so much in the rain. But rain or wind or shine she has to take her place with loggers getting up at 6 a.m., starting for the woods at 7 a.m., a 20-mile rough ride up the mountain to the logging show, a long hard day, but so different from those at UBC. Her dad is a partner in Duncan and Campbell Logging Co. (Ltd.), and contracts for MacMillan Bloedel.

Flowery Booth Didn't Fool Phone Trouble-Shooter

By MARY BACKLUND

GALIANO — Flowers in a telephone booth? Millions of them, so many that no one could tell whether there was a telephone there or not.

This is what the repair man, Stan Duncan, found in one of the pay booths on a recent trip over to Galiano Island from Salt Spring Island to check a trouble call.

Mr. Duncan, the repair man for B.C. Telephone, has his main office at Ganges, on Salt Spring Island, and comes over by small boat to check troubles on the telephone lines when necessary.

He has found many amusing things when he is fixing this type of telephone, but this is the first time he has found masses of flowers all over the booth.

He said they were artistically arranged, wild flowers in the nickel, dime and quarter slots, even carefully put in the dial system.

There was no damage to be seen, after Mr. Duncan cleared all of the flowers.

But he soon found there had been some damage to the telephone. Two integral parts were missing.

The transmitter capsule and the receiving capsule had been taken, and the covers put back in the receiver, rendering the phone unusable.

Mr. Duncan replaced these parts, and no further trouble was found.

He said he was really quite amused rather than angry when he found the booth covered in flowers. Now he wonders what he will find next.

By TED PULFORD

British Columbia motorists are killing one another — and themselves — at a rate unprecedented in the history of the province. And, if the trend continues, 600 persons will die before the end of the year.

Quake Next?

MANILA (UPI) — The Taal volcano spewed showers of ash and shook with intermittent tremors Tuesday, increasing fears of a general earthquake that could strike Manila 60 miles to the north.

Refinery Boost For U.K.

LONDON (CP) — Britain's ailing economy got another big boost Tuesday with the announcement by a leading United States corporation that it will proceed immediately with construction of a $30,000,000 oil refinery in England.

This decision by Continental Oil Co., described by a major British industrialist as one of "immense courage" — came a day after Canada's Home Oil Co. confirmed discovery of a huge natural gas deposit on the Yorkshire Moors. This could lead to a Canadian investment of up to $200,000,000.

By TANKEES

Continental's oil refinery, to be completed by late 1968 on the lower banks of the Humber at Immingham, just across the river from Hull on Britain's east coast, will refine about 4,500,000 tons of oil a year. It will use some Middle East crude but mostly oil brought by company tankers from huge reserves in Libya.

Refined products will be fed into Britain and also exported to the Continent, helping to strengthen Britain's international payments, Brown told a press conference.

COKE SUPPLY

This new plant, to be built by British Engineers, will provide Britain with its first domestic production of electrode-grade petroleum coke, used in producing aluminum and electric-heat steel.

Along with other products, the new plant will produce benzene.

'We're More Popular'

Sacrilege by Lennon Brings Beatle Ban

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A magazine article quoting John Lennon of the Beatles as saying his group is more popular than Jesus has ignited a "ban the Beatles records" campaign by Birmingham radio station WAQY.

Station Manager Tommy Charles said Tuesday the Beatles were his No. 1 attraction before he read the article in Life magazine.

The article quotes Maureen Cleave of the London Evening Standard as quoting Lennon as saying:

"Christianity will go. It will vanish and shrink. I needn't argue about that; I'm right and I will be proved right."

War Crimes Judges Named by Russell

NEW YORK (AP) — The names of 10 people who will serve on Lord Bertrand Russell's "war crimes tribunal" to try President Johnson and other American leaders for their Vietnam policies were announced Tuesday at a news conference.

They include French writers Jean Paul Sartre and Simone de Beauvoir, and Peter Weiss, the German exile who wrote the play Marat-Sade.

Lord Russell, 94, announced last June he would set up the tribunal this November in Paris, because France presents fewer visa problems for Vietnamese witnesses.

The panel will include Lazaro Cardenas, former president of Mexico; Danilo Dolci, Italian author; Lello Basco, Italian socialist; Jose de Castro, Brazilian scientist and chairman of the United Nations Council of Food and Agriculture; Vladimir Dedijer, Yugoslavian political scientist who has taught at Harvard; Isaac Deutscher, Polish exile in London who has written biographies of Stalin and Trotsky, and Lord Russell.

Railway Express Paralyzed In Wildcat Strike

Maritimes Parley Site

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's premiers next year will meet in New Brunswick for their annual talks and Premier Louis Robichaud "feels great about it."

The New Brunswick premier said he will be chairman of the meeting in Fredericton, and Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan will be vice-chairman.

MONTREAL (CP) — Some 2,000 express employees at the CNR and CPR in Montreal remained on strike Tuesday night and railway spokesmen said express shipments in and out of the city were wholly or partially stopped.

A spokesman for the CNR, where 1,500 of the men are involved in the wildcat strike, said: "We cannot handle express in or out of Montreal."

At the CPR, an express spokesman said there was an embargo on shipment of perishable goods in and out, and that "ordinary merchandise is being taken but subject to delay."

The strikes began at the CNR Monday and at the CPR Tuesday.

MARCHED

The men were apparently dissatisfied with the pace at which negotiations are proceeding toward agreement on a new work contract.

The men at the CNR belong to the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CBRTG). They staged a march Tuesday to the railway's Central Station.

That union, which did not support the strike, issued a statement Tuesday night saying its leaders planned to "advise their members to discontinue a work stoppage and return to work today."

NO WORD

Emery Leblanc, manager of the CNR's St. Lawrence region, said the men who began the strike at the CNR did not resume work when their shift began Tuesday.

"We haven't heard anything about when they intend to return to work," said Mr. Leblanc in an interview.

The men at the CPR are members of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees (CLC).

A conciliation board was set up nine months ago to study the union's demands for an increase of 57 cents in the men's hourly wage rate.

First Visit to Command Since Landymore Dust-up

Allard Will Sample Halifax Before Hellyer

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Gen. Jean V. Allard, new chief of the defence staff, will pay his first visit to Maritime Command later this week, it was learned Tuesday.

He was invited to visit the command 11 months after the firing of Rear-Admiral William Landymore by Defence Minister Hellyer in a dispute over the minister's plans to go ahead with unification of the armed forces.

Gen. Allard is expected to leave here Wednesday by plane, returning Friday.

His visit is regarded as preparation for the planned tour of Maritime Command by Mr. Hellyer later this month.

One possible reason for Gen. Allard's visit may be to discuss unification plans with Rear-Admiral J. C. O'Brien, who succeeded Rear-Admiral Landymore as commander of Maritime Command and of the Atlantic fleet.

The plans have been discussed during the last two weeks by the defence council, top policy advisory body at Canadian Forces Headquarters. He has said unification would mean no greater economy or efficiency than having three services.

Informants said Mr. Hellyer will place a detailed unification plan before Parliament with the unification legislation, and recommend study by the Commons defence committee.

Figures Say No

Are Grits Cooling Boom?

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Trade Minister Robert Winters Monday painted the picture of a boom that is galloping faster than the government's attempts to control it.

In his mid-year review of private and public investment, Mr. Winters said the estimate this year is $15,824,000,000. This would be 17 per cent higher than the $12,736,000,000 spent on capital purposes last year.

ESTIMATES RISE

The government, since its new year predictions, has had to revise its estimates upwards.

The new figures suggest that the government, with special tax measures introduced by Finance Minister Sharp this year, may be failing to cool off the boom.

These measures included an appeal to business to delay projects to ease the load on the construction industry; and extension of the construction "freeze" on some government projects; and a five per cent refundable tax on cash profits.

MORE PROBLEMS

In his review, Mr. Winters said the realization of the investment program would add to the demands placed upon the construction, materials and equipment-producing industries. These industries are already operating at close to capacity limits, and it seems unlikely that all programs now planned for 1966 will be completed this year.

RESTRAINT NEEDED

The new figures, Mr. Winters said, underlined the need for restraints in capital projects.

The revised investment plans involve capital outlays for machinery of $5,639,000,000 and construction of $9,385,000,000. These figures were 22 per cent and 15 per cent over last year.

The increase has occurred almost entirely in the business sector of the economy, up 23 per cent over last year and six per cent over the estimate made early this year.

Most of it is in manufacturing, mining, electric power, telecommunications and transportation facilities.

UN Voting Today On Clashes

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council ended Tuesday an eight-day debate on Syrian and Israeli complaints of border incidents. It scheduled a vote today on a resolution to condemn Israel's July 16 air attack on a Syrian river development project.

Diplomats predicted the resolution, sponsored by Jordan and Mali, would fall three votes short of the nine-vote majority necessary for adoption.

Hospital Tieup Ending

MONTREAL (CP) — Indications were Tuesday that the end of Quebec's 18-day strike of 22,500 non-medical hospital workers in 119 hospitals could come about quickly.

Yves Pratte, given authority to sign a contract settlement with the workers under an order placing 138 hospitals under government trustee ship and naming him as administrator, held day-long talks with the workers' representatives.

The workers' representatives agreed during the weekend to a government wage proposal offering $10-a-week increases on the workers' average weekly wage of $69 on condition the hospitals, represented by the Quebec Hospital Association, agreed to incorporate clauses dealing with promotion and union rights in a contract.

The hospital association refused to agree to this and as a result the government Monday placed the hospitals under government trusteeship.

Shot from Hilltop Kills Playing Child

HOQUIAM, Wash. (AP) — Kelley Campbell, 4, shot mysteriously as she played near her home here Monday, died Tuesday as a result of the wound.

The little girl was shot in the back of the head with a .22-calibre bullet. She never regained consciousness.

"We don't have anything definite yet," said Sgt. Edward Herman. Officers believe the shot was fired from a spot on a hill about 200 feet from where the youngster was playing.

Shoals Ahead For Medicare

TORONTO (CP) — Federal proposals for subsidizing medical care insurance schemes operated by the provinces seem headed for rocky shoals. Several provincial premiers said Tuesday they aren't happy with terms laid down by Ottawa for participation.

Sniper Warned Slaughter Coming

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A University of Texas psychiatrist who examined a slain sniper Charles J. Whitman said Tuesday Whitman told him March 29 he was "thinking about going up on the tower with a deer rifle and shooting people."

Dr. Maurice Dean Healy, who said he examined Whitman March 29, made the disclosure at a campus press conference. The disclosure came shortly after an autopsy report revealed Whitman had a brain tumor, which officials said might have indirectly contributed to his murder rampage that left 16 dead, including himself. Another 34 were wounded.

Healy, on the staff of the university health centre, said Whitman recognized or felt "he was not achieving in his school work, and this was disconcerting to him."

The stocky, bespectacled psychiatrist said Whitman readily admitted to hostility with a minimum of provocation. Healy, who said Whitman had been referred to him by a general practitioner, said earlier Whitman had described his father as being "cruel, domineering and extremely demanding."

He quoted Whitman as saying he was "very fond of his wife."

Knee Acting Up

Crippled Shortstop May Move to Third

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Maury Wills, the base-stealing shortstop of Los Angeles Dodgers, says he may have to play third base for the rest of the National League season.

Wills played third Monday night in Pittsburgh for the first time in two years because of his twisted, swollen and heavily bandaged right knee. John Kennedy was at shortstop most of the game.

It long has been manager Walt Alston's feeling that Wills could prolong his baseball career by shifting to third base, but any such decision is a matter of time and the condition of the knee.

A club spokesman said it now is obvious that Wills can not move as swiftly in either direction as when he is sound and that playing third enables him to favor the right knee more than when he's playing shortstop.

And Others Must Lose

Win All—or Out Rule for Rocks

Victoria Shamrocks must win all their remaining games — including tonight's at Memorial Arena against Coquitlam Adanacs — and their opposition for the final playoff spot in the Inter-City Lacrosse League has to keep losing.

It's as simple as that, following Vancouver's 11-8 win over New Westminster at Kerrisdale Arena Tuesday.

The Rocks have four games left and must win all seven to qualify for the playoffs. They have three games remaining: a New Westminster win or a Victoria loss will end it.

And the Rocks trail second-place Vancouver by eight points. Even if they won all their games place Vancouver by eight points, still be only a 1-2 game out.

The worst of it is the Rocks have two games left against Vancouver, but none against New Westminster. And the fact New Westminster and Vancouver still play each other once more doesn't make it any better.

Pennant for Carlings

Softball Hitter Double Hero

The final position will be decided Thursday and Friday, in the final two games of the season. Thursday, Sooker meets Red Lions, and Friday, Colony meets Carlings. If Sooker and Colony both win, they finish tied for fourth place with McLaren's, and a special playoff will be required.

McLaren's catcher Jim Wilson was a double hero at Heywood Avenue Park Tuesday.

He cracked a one-out homer in the bottom of the ninth inning to give Mags a 7-6 overtime victory over Luckies in Senior A Softball League play.

Mags liked it because they now can do no worse than a tie for the fourth and final playoff spot. Carlings liked it because Luckies' loss gave them the league pennant and a bye into the B.C. softball playoffs.

Winnipeg Bombs Young Eskimos

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers romped through the rookie-laden Edmonton Eskimos for a 26-7 Western Football Conference victory before 15,112 fans Tuesday night.

Jim Thomas reduced Eskimos' humiliation, sweeping left from his halfback slot to gallop 100 yards for a touchdown on the final play of the game. Tommy Joe Coffey converted. Bombers scored three touchdowns in the second quarter — by Dave Raimy, Norm Rauhaus and Ken Nielsen — as they gained a share of first place with Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Edmonton, breaking in 15 rookies, couldn't crack the Winnipeg defence sparked by linebacker Al Miller and Uimer.

Ploen, succeeded in the late stages by Dick Thornton, completed 16 of 26 passes for 246 yards. Raimy took five for 62 yards, Nielsen four for 49 and flanker Billy Cooper one for 48.

Edmonton line was a shade more effective than the pass-defence unit, holding the Bombers to 125 yards rushing, 39 by Raimy.

Leo Lewis, in his 11th season as Bombers' halfback, grabbed Ploen's dump pass over the middle late in the first quarter and swept 28 yards down the left side to the Edmonton 28-yard line. Raimy swept 12 yards to the left for a touchdown on the first scrimmage of the second period.

In the ninth minute, Edmonton flanker Gary LeFebvre fumbled Uimer's punt in the end zone and Rauhaus pounced on the ball.

Cooper outpaced Eskimos' Art Johnson in the 13th minute to make a back-peddling catch of Ploen's 48-yard pass on the Edmonton 10-yard line. Nielsen slipped to the end zone sidelines to grab a seven-yard touchdown strike.

The second half, until Thomas' dazzling sprint, was utter frustration for Edmonton, victims of five touchdowns. They never crossed midfield for most of the 30 minutes, scrambling from inside their 25-yard line.

Nine in a Row?

Lions, Calgary Start Tonight

CALGARY — Can B.C. Lions make it nine in a row when they meet Calgary Stampeders at Taylor Field tonight?

The game, first for both clubs this football season, follows Lions losses in all three pre-season games this year — and

The Stampede-Lions football game in Calgary tonight will be shown on Channel 8 beginning at 8 p.m., according to the network concerned.

B.C. also dropped its final five games in the 1965 season. Calgary had a 2-2 exhibition record.

The eastern conference opens tonight with Montreal in Ottawa.

Lions coach Dave Skrebin announced Tuesday night that Mack Burton and rookie Wayne

Foster will not dress tonight. Steve Shafer will start in the defensive backfield.

Quarterback Joe Kapp is ready. He missed both the Ottawa and Hamilton exhibitions with a pulled hamstring muscle.

The game is the first of three the Lions will play in 10 days. They come home for Edmonton Eskimos Monday, and the following Friday move into Regina to tackle Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Stampeders coach Jerry Williams is worried about end Herman Harrison's knee injury. The big end is expected to be out at least two weeks with torn knee cartilage.

Eut Calgary gained some relief with the return of Frank Budd, ready to dress for the game.

Sue Butt Advances

Top-seeded Canadian Mike Belkin of Toronto had a surprisingly hard time advancing, struggling to win in his second round appearance, 6-0, 9-7 over Tom Muench of Sacramento, Calif.

Fourth-seeded foreigner Bob Potthast of Los Angeles also had difficulty winning, taking a 1-5, 6-4, 6-0 win over unseeded Jim Jackson of Portland.

Allen Fox, the top-seeded foreigner from Los Angeles, beat Vancouver's Art Jeffery 6-2, 6-0.

In women's play, Canadian top seed Faye Urban of Windsor, Ont., defeated Joe-Anne Frayley of Long Beach, Calif., 6-1, 6-1, and Rita Bentley of Manchester, England, beat Hedy Jackson of Portland, Ore., 7-5, 6-3.

Among other Victorians, Sue Butt advanced without difficulty but Theo Booker was defeated in women's singles play.

Gamesmen Leave Empire

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) — A proposal to have the war Empire removed from the title British Empire and Commonwealth Games is almost certain to be approved at a meeting here Sunday.

The Games' executive decided Monday night to recommend to the general assembly that the name of the competition should in future be known as the British Commonwealth Games. The 1966 edition starts Thursday.

Referee Sander Kovacs awarded a disputed fall to Don Leo Jonathan over Dutch Sav. Early Barrett, Roy McClary pinned Corilla Marconi, Paul de Gaulle and Paul Jones drew, and Eric Froelich pinned Red McNulty.

Red Lion Inn was the only team which managed a win as close scores were featured in Esquimalt Sunday. The Lions edged Suburban Motors 3-2, while Inghram Raiders and Tudor Monarchs tied 2-2.

The Carletons, who won the B.C. Pony League title in Victoria over the weekend, meet Pinto, Ore., at 11:30 a.m., then take on the host Walla Walla club at 7:30 p.m. Walla Walla won the tournament opener Tuesday night, edging Pinto 5-3.

The winner qualifies for a trip to Hawaii, where the regional Pony League championship round begins Saturday.

Police Arrest Juvenile Suspect In Brutal Chase River Slaying

NANAIMO — RCMP have arrested a juvenile in connection with the bludgeoning slaying of an 82-year-old Chase River woman.

The suspect was taken into custody at 8:45 p.m. Tuesday at Chase River. He will appear in Nanaimo court this morning.

Elna Hartman's savings were tied around her neck when a brutal robber entered her home last week.

And the money was still there when a neighbor found her lying dead, in a pool of her own blood, on the kitchen floor of her 13th Street home.

Police speculate the robber must have killed the 82-year-old reclusive and then panicked and fled.

He didn't take $7,240 in a plastic bag tied around the dead woman's neck.

A tracking dog turned up the death weapon, a piece of firewood from Mrs. Hartman's home.

The weapon was "found cached and covered in a cavity under a big rock, across the road from Mrs. Hartman's home.

"The plastic bag contained $7,240 in $20, $50 and $100 bills," an officer said.

He said 10 $20 U.S. gold coins, one dated 1850, three $10 U.S. gold coins, and three uncashed pension cheques also were found in the three-room house.

A $100 savings bond and some $2 and $1 bills also were found, the officer said.

"There was a lot of blood and hair on the piece of wood. We know it was taken from the woodbox in her home because we found it was a mate for another piece of wood we found in the box," he said.

Qualicum Boy Dies in Pool

QUALICUM BEACH — A five-year-old Qualicum Beach boy drowned while swimming in a private pool in Qualicum.

Mark Hawthornwaite was found on the bottom of the pool Tuesday morning.

Nanaimo Coroner Russ Inkster says the youth died from drowning.

An investigation is being conducted into the boy's death.

Bring Your Fence

PORT ALBERNI — Instead of artists going to the fall fair and painting on fences, they'll paint the fence and then bring it to the fall fair.

Three prizes, $75, $50 and $25 are being offered for original paintings.

The intention is to set these up in a fence-like display, similar to the effect created by fence-painters in Vancouver and other Canadian cities.

Artists may set their genius to work on either canvases or plywood. Entry fee will be $2 and the three winning pictures are to become the property of the fall fair.

Artists may pick up entry forms at radio station CJAV.

However, officials are hopeful of obtaining a good number of out-of-town entries. Requests for entry forms for out-of-towners should be addressed to Mrs. B. J. Pederson, 922 Anderson Avenue North, Port Alberni, and marked Painting Contest.

Raven's Angry Flight Ends in Sudden Death

DUNCAN — A flight of ravens swooped on a pasture on the farm of Mr. and Mrs. George Whittaker, and minutes later a day-old Shorthorn calf died. The birds had picked out one of its eyes.

Mr. Whittaker said "I came back with a load of hay and saw five or six raven lighting close to where the calf was sleeping. I was too far away to do anything about it.

"The calf tried to jump up but fell back."

He said the birds had picked a hole through to the brain of the small animal.

The pure Shorthorn calf was valued at $100.

Mr. Whittaker said he noticed a considerable increase in the raven population on his farm.

He said at one time there were only two but now there are about 100.

Hazard Hits Logging

DUNCAN — The hot weather may be good for tourists, but it is not helping the logging industry. Many men are being put on early shift or are taking holidays early.

Hillcrest Lumber Co., Lake Cowichan, put its men on early morning shift Tuesday and about 100 men are affected.

● Copper Canyon and Shewanigan Lake divisions of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. were put on early morning shift Tuesday.

● Gordon River Camp, Western Forestries Ltd. is expected to work all week on the early morning shift.

Annual holidays start in the middle of August but if the weather continues to be hot, holidays might start a week earlier.

● About 240 men at Cay-cuse went on early morning shift, and there is a possible earlier shut down for the two week annual holiday.

Who Needs Apron Strings?

DUNCAN — The umbilical cord between Cowichan Indian band and the Department of Indian Affairs will be cut 1 p.m. Sunday by L. S. Marchand of Ottawa, assistant to minister Arthur Lalag.

The cord in this case will be made of a copy of the Indian Act, and the ceremony will mark the official opening of the Cowichan Band's office on Allenby Road.

Cowichan band is one of the first in Canada to hire a full-time secretary, Louise Underwood.

The band has assumed many responsibilities.

The department's community development worker at Duncan, George Manuel, said "Cowichan band is one of very few across the nation that has reached this stage of development."

He said after recognizing the Indians' desire to handle their own affairs, the department of Indian Affairs altered its old course, and the development in the Cowichan area falls in line with the new policy.

During the past several years Cowichan Indians pioneered different projects.

TINY TOT CLASS

Early this year mothers of the band established a Tiny Tot nursery on their own initiative, members of the very active Cowichan Indian Homemakers Club organized and carried through this year's B.C. Homemakers convention at Duncan without any help from the department.

An Indian youth group, The Thunderbirds, operates on similar lines as a Teen Town.

The council, instead of handling all affairs as a group, took the example of other municipal governments and formed different committees.

The Cowichan band is also one of the first in Canada to hire a social worker, who, in conjunction with the Cowichan School Board, will look after the needs of Indians.

LONG ROAD

"The Cowichan Indians have come a very long way," said Mr. George.

Following the brief ceremony Sunday, members of the Cowichan band will perform Indian dancing, singing and a stick game to be followed by an outdoor salmon barbecue.

Major Firm Gets Notice

PORT ALBERNI — Carpenters have served strike notice on one of five major construction firms, who earlier served lockout notice on the union.

Strike notice was served on Southern Construction, but an official of the company said he understood the carpenters do not intend to walk out as soon as the notice runs out.

If there is a strike, four other companies have indicated they will lock out their carpenters.

FOUR INVOLVED

The four are Turner Construction, Danzo and Franco, Nu-Mode Construction and Port Alberni Home Builders.

A civic official said a strike would cripple many small jobs, as well as major items.

The big jobs threatened: Public works yard, public safety building, finishing of Eric J. Dunn junior high, four classrooms for Eighth Avenue Elementary, a wood-decker room and a clarifier building at Alberni Pulp Mill, a mill expansion worth $125,000 at Somass Division, Franklyn River office complex, and a new Presbyterian church.

Pulp Union Fight Goes Before Board

NANAIMO — The battle for jurisdiction at Harmac and other big coast pulp mills appears headed for a showdown.

The provincial labor relations board has met in Vancouver to referee a bitter inter-union battle.

The dispute is between the International Brotherhood of Pulp Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, and Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

Tourists Must Pay Piper

Shopping Complex Moves on Schedule

NANAIMO — Chamber of Commerce directors learned Tuesday tourists face the same parking penalties as Nanaimo residents.

The chamber had hoped for a relaxing of the violation procedure, to give tourists a good impression of Nanaimo's hospitality.

But city council said no.

Courtesy parking tickets will not be given to out-of-province cars that violate the rules.

DISCRIMINATION

"This would discriminate against Nanaimo people and tourists from other parts of B.C.," said Ald. Peter McLoughlin. He said even tourists who borrow or rent cars with B.C. licences would be discriminated against.

TOURISM PROMOTED

Ald. Sandy MacKay said "the chamber of commerce should be applauded for its attempt to promote tourism."

He claimed the present permit system discouraged

Ald. Ted Barsby told council "parking meters won't keep the tourist away from Nanaimo."

Ald. McLoughlin said records show not one ticket was issued to an out-of-province car in several months.

The courtesy ticket would have explained the law, but would not have required payment of a fine.

Mayor Pete Maffeo has received a progress report at city hall from officials of Marathon Realty and Dominion Construction on the new harbor shopping centre in downtown Nanaimo.

A spokesman said the $5,000,000 development is proceeding on schedule.

CENTRE IS CREDIT

The huge addition to the Safeway-Simpson Sears complex will cover 12 acres when completed.

Mayor Maffeo said the new harbor park shopping centre will be "a fine credit to the city of Nanaimo."

California Boy Walks Miles In Rough Land

PARKSVILLE — Visitors from California had a harrowing experience when their eight-year-old son wandered away while the family was having a picnic at Little Qualicum Falls Park.

Stewart Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Harris of Los Altos, walked seven miles along an old logging road, and arrived near the Island Highway at Dashwood, north of Qualicum Beach.

He was tired but unharmed by his frightening experience.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Mennie, who live near Snyder's Store at Dashwood, heard a small voice shouting "Help, I'm lost," about 5 p.m.

BOY TIRED

They saw Stewart tired and tearful, in their yard. Mrs. Mennie took him in and gave him a glass of milk, while her husband contacted the RCMP.

The RCMP had two constables and a tracking dog searching in the park after Mr. and Mrs. Harris had reported their son missing in the early afternoon.

He had walked away by himself as they were clearing up after their picnic lunch and it was feared that he had fallen into the river.

SQUAD WAS READY

In addition to the police search party, the Parksville Fish and Game Club search and rescue squad had been alerted, also a search party from Coombs, and some men had already started out when Stewart turned up.

He said he had to cross the river at one point, and it was fortunate he chose that particular logging road; he might have gone around in circles.

Litter Fine Doubled

PARKSVILLE — This village is getting fed up with candy wrappers.

Also with cigarette packages, paper plates, napkins and brown paper bags.

Too much litter is hurting the eyes of council members, and they have moved to do something about it.

PENALTY CHANGED

At a special meeting, council gave three readings to a bylaw that would change the penalty for littering and other infractions of the community park rules.

The fine would be boosted from $50 to $100 or 30 days in jail.

LIMIT PASSED

The bylaw also includes a clause changing the ruling on leasing of park concessions increasing the time limit to five years instead of the present six months.

In other business, final adoption was given to a bylaw to rezone a lot on the corner of Jensen Avenue and Craig Street from residential to commercial. The site is desired for a medical building.

GIFTS GIVEN

A donation of $25 was approved for the Union Board of Health and a grant of $100 for Parksville Juvenile Baseball Association.

Council chairman Ed Irving and Councillor E. J. Tucker were named as voting delegates to the UBCM Convention at Penikese in September.

Just What We Need, a 1948 Hearse

By MARY BACKLUND

GALIANO ISLAND — Betty Kennedy and Joe E. Smallwood of Newfoundland, are combining efforts in different ways to support Saturna Island's drive to raise enough money to send children on a centennial trip in 1967.

Betty recently won a raffle put on by the Saturna children. The prize was a 1948 limousine formerly used for funerals, and in good shape.

Betty's husband is Dr. Gilbert Kennedy, deputy attorney-general of British Columbia.

The Kennedy's have a home on Galiano Island overlooking Active Pass.

Betty heard of the Saturna effort, bought two raffle tickets and put them in her purse, thinking that it was a very good cause.

When she heard last week that she won, she was delighted but what should she do with it?

She has taken kidding from all of her friends, but they are not really interested in buying it from her.

She also found out that this car has been officially assessed at $48.50, and given to the children by Robert Hindmarch of Saturna Island.

This makes the raffle legal, which pleased Dr. Kennedy, who was of the opinion that she should give it back to them for another draw.

There was some discussion about this giving the car back, and Mrs. Kennedy said that she would not give it back. She won it, and that is that.

Then she offered to sell it to one of her daughters, who thought it might be useful in getting around the city.

But many of her daughter's friends are interested in cars, and some of them took a look at it, deciding it would use too much gas per mile.

Now, since the interest in the winning of this car is so great, Mrs. Kennedy has decided to give it back to the children at Saturna, and it will be auctioned off on Saturna Island on July 30.

The money from this auction will go for the children's tour. Teachers Mrs. Taimie Hindmarch is being helped by the parents of children of Saturna Island, and their committee is sponsored by the Saturna Island Community Club.

As a matter of fact, everyone wants to help in this gigantic effort to raise enough money to go across Canada in 1967.

So far in the drive they have raised about $1,000. They expect it will cost them about $5,000.

Frederic Smallwood was impressed with the effort, and wrote a letter containing an invitation to say hello when they reach Newfoundland.

Showcase of Arts Talent Ends Courtenay Session

COURTENAY — A summer arts showcase closed the first session of the summer school of the arts at Courtenay.

Students showed painting and pottery, and performed dance, drama and music.

The children, teenagers and adults, pupils of Mrs. Jacqueline Sears, demonstrated various movements and patterns learned during courses in creative and contemporary dance. The children spelled out their names in rhythmic body movements.

SCENES SHOWN

Improvisations of the teen and adult drama class kept the show moving by rapid sketches.

Don Forbes, music instructor, conducted the children's chorus and adult chorus through a selection of songs.

Feature of the evening was the presentation of the Gilbert and Sullivan show Trial by Jury.

Members of the junior and senior choral groups made up the cast for this work which was learned and staged in 10 days. This concentrated effort was a characteristic of the summer session, in which much was accomplished in a very little time.

STUDENTS ALONE

The instructors were impressed with the talent that the students showed in every field of art, and one instructor stated that the Showcase surpassed other summer school showcases for its first year. It was a complete program featuring the students of the school, and did not require any outside entertainment to improve the program.

ORGANIZATION GOOD

The instructors were impressed with the organization of the school. The school in its first year compared more than favorably with other well-established summer schools in the province.

Pearkes At Quadra

COMOX — Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes and Mrs. Pearkes recently visited HMCS Quadra, the navy cadet training base here.

After formal inspection and march past, Mr. Pearkes saw several aspects of the cadet training program including a gymnastics display, a demonstration of the obstacle course, the naval sunset ceremony, and sailing.

After a chat with cadets, the lieutenant-governor was pulled ashore in a cadet-manned 32-foot cutter.

Cowichan Missionary Will Move to Tahsis

DUNCAN — Missionary to the Cowichan Indian band, Father Joseph Rosalter will leave Friday to take up his new position as missionary at Tahsis.

A member of the Oblate Fathers, he was ordained at Ottawa eight years ago.

He came to the Cowichan district seven years ago.

Father Rosalter was born on Prince Edward Island. He helped many Indian groups and was particularly interested in youth work, and for a number of years he has been very active with the Cowichan Indian Corpus Christi sports day which is an annual highlight in the spring.

Cobble Hill Minister Marks Church's Day

PARKSVILLE — Rev. Peter Gamble Harris of St. John's, Cobble Hill, was guest preacher and celebrant for the Patronal Festival of St. Anne's Anglican Church, French Creek which marked 72 years since the log church was consecrated.

In his sermon at Festal Evensong at the church, Mr. Harris spoke of the gospel in a changing world. A great many changes have taken place since the church was built, he said.

The service was conducted by Rev. Eric Blackstock, vicar of St. Anne's, and the first lesson was read by Rev. William Hills, vicar of St. Mark's, Qualicum Beach. Lay reader Norman Trimm, Parksville, read the second lesson and Dudley Wickert, Parksville, was organist and also provided a short organ recital before the processional hymn.

Earlier in the day Mr. Harris was celebrant at a service of Holy Communion at 10 a.m. and during the afternoon he and Mrs. Harris met parishioners and visitors when Mr. and Mrs. Blackstock were hosts for a lawn party at the vicarage.

Galiano Dedicates New Instrument

GALIANO ISLAND — Music, the youngest of the arts, alone is capable of entering into the emotions of the soul, giving harmonious expression to their lofty spiritual aspirations, said Rev. Hubert Doody.

He was dedicating the organ in the church of St. Margaret of Scotland, dedicated in the memory of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Scoones, dead members of St. Margaret's Guild, and other donors.

Victor Zala played at the dedication.

Mr. Doody said, "Although no records clearly indicate the character of the songs and chants of the early Christian church, outside of the Psalms, we may assume the best of the Hebrew, Greek and Islamic inheritances had been preserved and incorporated."

"Their very design points to an enduring basis for the grand fabric of sacred harmony."

Tourists Try Fishing Tour Alberni Pulp Mill

PORT ALBERNI — Tourists are flocking to the Alberni Valley this summer in unprecedented numbers. They come to fish, to swim, to enjoy the mountains, rivers and streams, and to make their way over the tortuous mountain route to the increasingly popular West Coast area around Uchelet, Tofino and Long Beach.

Since the tourist bureau, sponsored by the Alberni Valley Chamber of Commerce, opened June 1, more than 1,800 cars and 5,300 people have visited the bureau.

The last week in July set a record with 350 cars in one seven-day period, and 1,150 people in them.

So far this season, the bureau has averaged 50 cars daily, and 166 people each day.

Guided tours of the Alberni Pulp and Paper Mill, one of the world's most modern plants as well as Canada's largest, are a stellar attraction with both tourists and residents, mill officials report.

So far this year, more than 3,200 people have toured the mill, with less than 50 per cent of them local residents.

"The rest come from all parts of Canada and the United States," mill officials report. "Others have come from England, Germany, France, Denmark, Australia, Holland, Scotland, India, China, Switzerland, Japan, New Zealand, Ireland, and from the Cameroons in West Africa."

Mill tours are conducted twice daily at 9:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Monday through Friday at the giant pulp mill.

City Offers To Donate Costly Home

COURTENAY — City council wants the regional district to take over Glacier View Home for old people.

Aldermen approved a letter asking the regional board to assume financial responsibility.

Woman Remanded

NANAIMO — An 18-year-old Nanaimo woman was remanded in custody for a probation report after she pleaded guilty in magistrate's court to three charges arising from a hit-and-run incident.

Miss Vera Doyle Drake was charged with leaving the scene of an accident, failing to stop at several stop signs, and driving without a license, following a wild police chase through the south end Tuesday morning.

Miss Drake sidestepped a parked van with a truck she had taken from a neighbor, and then attempted to elude police who gave chase. She was finally apprehended on the Nanaimo Indian reserve.

Magistrate Sean Wardill fined the woman a total of $20 on two of the charges, but reserved decision on the hit-and-run charge until later.

Shipments Rise Again

PORT ALBERNI — Exports rose again during July, the harbor commission office reported, with an increase of 11,683 tons over July of 1965.

Twenty-one ships arrived and 23 departed, taking with them a total of 71,713 tons of forest products. Paper exports totalled 26,040 tons, pulp 9,532 tons, plywood 3,195 tons and shingles 47 tons. Lumber was 32,860 tons, or 21,926,666 board feet.

Last year the total of exports was 60,019 tons. Also cleared through the Port Alberni customs office was a shipment of iron ore from Toquart Bay, totalling 38,000 tons.

A strike at Brynner Mines operation has made a considerable reduction in the usual iron ore tonnage from that area.

By TED PULFORD

British Columbia motorists are killing one another — and themselves — at a rate unprecedented in the history of the province. And, if the trend continues, 600 persons will die before the end of the year.

Quake Next?

MANILA (UPI) — The Taal volcano spewed showers of ash and shook with intermittent tremors Tuesday, increasing fears of a general earthquake that could strike Manila 40 miles to the north.

Refinery Boost For U.K.

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's ailing economy got another big boost Tuesday with the announcement by a leading United States corporation that it will proceed immediately with construction of a $30,000,000 oil refinery in England.

This decision by Continental Oil Co., described by a major British industrialist as one of "immense courage" — came a day after Canada's Home Oil Co. confirmed discovery of a huge natural gas deposit on the Yorkshire Moors. This could lead to a Canadian investment of up to $200,000,000.

BY TANKERS

Continental's oil refinery, to be completed by late 1968 on the lower banks of the Humber at Immingham, just across the river from Hull on Britain's east coast, will refine about 4,500,000 tons of oil a year. It will use some Middle East crude but mostly oil brought by company tankers from huge reserves in Libya.

Refined products will be fed into Britain and also exported to the Continent, helping to strengthen Britain's international payments. Brown told a press conference.

COKE SUPPLY

This new plant, to be built by British Engineers, will provide Britain with its first domestic production of electrode-grade petroleum coke, used in producing aluminum and electric-heat steel.

Along with other products, the new plant will produce benzene.

'We're More Popular'

Sacrilege by Lennon Brings Beatle Ban

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A magazine article quoting John Lennon of the Beatles as saying his group is more popular than Jesus has ignited a "ban the Beatles records" campaign by Birmingham radio station WAQY.

Station Manager Tommy Charles said Tuesday the Beatles were his No. 1 attraction before he read the article in Datebook.

The article quotes Maureen Cleave of the London Evening Standard as quoting Lennon as saying:

"Christianity will go. It will vanish and shrink. I needn't argue about that; I'm right and I will be proved right."

We're (the Beatles) more popular than Jesus now. I don't know which will go first — rock 'n' roll or Christianity. Jesus was all right, but his disciples were thick and ordinary. It's them twisting it to suit their own ends.

Commenting on Lennon's statement, Charles said: "We just felt it was so absurd and sacrilegious that something ought to be done to show them they cannot get away with this sort of thing."

The Birmingham disc jockey said more than 99 per cent of the calls regarding this campaign support it. "Almost unbelievably the teenagers, almost as soon as they were sure it was true (the quotes), became really angry, some to the point of tears," Charles said. "All sorts of record and book stores have called saying they are taking their Beatles records and books off the market."

WAQY is broadcasting spot announcements every hour telling the audience to turn in their Beatles records, pictures, magazines and souvenirs to designated pickup spots.

"We'll have a giant Beatle bonfire the night they are closest to Birmingham on their next American tour, probably when they are in Memphis later this month," Charles said.

First Visit to Command Since Landymore Dust-up

Allard Will Sample Halifax Before Hellyer

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (UPI) — Gen. Jean V. Allard, new chief of the defence staff, will pay his first visit to Maritime Command later this week, it was learned Tuesday.

He was invited to visit the command in mid-July after the firing of Rear-Admiral William Landymore by Defence Minister Hellyer in a dispute over the minister's plans to go ahead with unification of the armed forces.

Gen. Allard is expected to leave here today by plane, returning Friday.

His visit is regarded as preparation for the planned tour of Maritime Command by Mr. Hellyer later this month.

One possible reason for Gen. Allard's visit may be to discuss unification plans with Rear-Admiral J. C. O'Brien, who succeeded Rear-Admiral Landymore as commander of Maritime Command and of the Atlantic fleet.

The plans have been discussed during the last two weeks by the defence council, top policy advisory body at Canadian Forces Headquarters. He has said unification would mean no greater economy or efficiency than having three services.

Informants said Mr. Hellyer will place a detailed unification plan before Parliament with the unification legislation, and recommend study, by the Commons defence committee.

Police watch as railroad workers mill around Montreal office

Tea Tieup In Order

LONDON (AP) — A British railway signalman who brought the service to a standstill by walking off the job for a tea break was perfectly within his rights, a rail official said Tuesday. (See Page 9.)

Said a spokesman for the state-owned rail system: "There is no question of any action against him."

MONTREAL (CP) — Some 2,000 express employees at the CNR and CPR in Montreal remained on strike Tuesday night and railway spokesmen said express shipments in and out of the city were wholly or partially stopped.

A spokesman for the CNR, where 1,500 of the men are involved in the wildcat strike, said: "We cannot handle express in or out of Montreal."

At the CPR, an express spokesman said there was an embargo on shipment of perishable goods in and out, and that "ordinary merchandise is being taken but subject to delay."

The strikes began at the CNR Monday and at the CPR Tuesday.

MARCHED

The men were apparently dissatisfied with the pace at which negotiations are proceeding toward agreement on a new work contract.

The men at the CNR belong to the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC). They staged a march Tuesday to the railway's Central Station.

That union, which did not support the strike, issued a statement Tuesday night saying its leaders planned to "advise their members to discontinue a work stoppage and return to work" today.

NO WORD

Emery Leblanc, manager of the CNR's St. Lawrence region, said the men who began the strike at the CNR did not resume work when their shift began Tuesday.

"We haven't heard anything about when they intend to return to work," said Mr. Leblanc in an interview.

The men at the CPR are members of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees (CLC).

A conciliation board was set up nine months ago to study the union's demands for an increase of 97 cents in the men's hourly wage rate.

Shot from Hilltop Kills Playing Child

HOQUIAM, Wash. (AP) — Kelley Campbell, 4, shot mysteriously as she played near her home here Monday, died Tuesday as a result of the wound.

The little girl was shot in the back of the head with a .22-calibre bullet. She never regained consciousness.

"We don't have anything definite yet," said Sgt. Edward Herman. Officers believe the shot was fired from a spot on a hill about 200 feet from where the youngster was playing.

Shoals Ahead For Medicare

TORONTO (CP) — Federal proposals for subsidizing medical care insurance schemes operated by the provinces seem headed for rocky shoals. Several provincial premiers said Tuesday they aren't happy with terms laid down by Ottawa for participation.

BOOM WON'T COOL

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Trade Minister Robert Winters Tuesday painted the picture of a boom that is galloping faster than the government's attempts to control it.

In his mid-year review of private and public investment, Mr. Winters said the estimate this year is $15,024,000,000.

This would be 17 per cent higher than the $12,798,000,000 spent on capital purposes last year.

ESTIMATES RISE

The government, since its new year predictions, has had to revise its estimates upwards.

The new figures suggest that the government, with special tax measures introduced by Finance Minister Sharp this year, may be failing to cool off the boom.

These measures included an appeal to business to delay projects to ease the load on the construction industry; and extension of the construction "freeze" on some government projects; and a five per cent refundable tax on cash profits.

MORE PROBLEMS

In his review, Mr. Winters said the realization of the investment program would add to the demands placed upon the construction, materials and equipment-producing industries. These industries are already operating at close to capacity limits, and it seems unlikely that all programs now planned for 1966 will be completed this year.

RESTRAINT NEEDED

The new figures, Mr. Winters said, underlined the need for restraints in capital projects.

The revised investment plans involve capital outlays for machinery of $5,629,000,000 and construction of $9,395,000,000.

These figures were 22 per cent and 15 per cent over last year.

The increase has occurred almost entirely in the business sector of the economy, up 23 per cent over last year and six per cent over the estimate made early this year.

Most of it is in manufacturing, mining, electric power, telephones and transportation facilities.

UN Voting Today On Clashes

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council ended Tuesday an eight-day debate on Syrian and Israeli complaints of border incidents. It scheduled a vote today on a resolution to condemn Israel's July 14 air attack on a Syrian river development project. Diplomats predicted the resolution, sponsored by Jordan and Mali, would fall three votes short of the nine-vote majority necessary for adoption.

Hospital Tieup Ending

MONTREAL (CP) — Indications were Tuesday that the end of Quebec's 19-day strike of 32,500 non-medical hospital workers in 119 hospitals could come about quickly.

Yves Fratte, given authority to sign a contract settlement with the workers under an order placing 138 hospitals under government trusteeship and naming him as administrator, held day-long talks with the workers' representatives.

The workers' representatives agreed during the weekend to a government wage proposal offering $10-a-week increases on the workers' average weekly wage of $69 on condition the hospitals, represented by the Quebec Hospital Association, agreed to incorporate clauses dealing with promotion and union rights in a contract.

The hospital association refused to agree to this and as a result the government Monday placed the hospitals under government trusteeship.

Sniper Warned Slaughter Coming

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A University of Texas psychiatrist who examined a slain sniper Charles J. Whitman said Tuesday Whitman told him March 29 he was "thinking about going up on the tower with a deer rifle and shooting people."

Dr. Maurice Dean Healy, who said he examined Whitman March 29, made the disclosure at a campus press conference.

Ted disclosure came shortly after an autopsy report revealed Whitman had a brain tumor, which officials said might have indirectly contributed to his murder rampage that left 16 dead, including himself. Another 34 were wounded.

Healy, on the staff of the university health centre, said

Whitman recognized or felt "he was not achieving in his school work, and this was disconcerting to him."

The stocky, bespectacled psychiatrist said Whitman readily admitted his hostility with a minimum of provocation.

Healy, who said Whitman had been referred to him by a general practitioner, said earlier Whitman had described his father as being "cruel, domineering and extremely demanding." He quoted Whitman as saying he was "very fond of his wife."

Whitman admitted having assaulted or struck his wife on two occasions, Healy said. However, he continued, Whit-
